Events of Interest to Pioneer Prospectors Reaches a Culmination.

Twelve Thousand Homesteaders Take Selections and Then Take Leave.

Fakers Who Prepared for Skinning "Rubes" Lose Their Endeavors.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
ILLINOIS, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The long-expected opening of the ceded portion of the Crow Indian lands is about to be realized, today being the last day for registration.
With the closing of the land office, last night, 12,000 would-be homesteaders had registered their applications for land. This long-looked-for land-opening dates back in interest to 1852, when, in Northern Wyoming, old prospectors and hunters were merely biding their time to be ready for the rumored opening of the Crow lands, and were not trying to permanently locate anywhere.
Billings is a very thriving town, and contains many enterprising citizens, some of whom planned to make a fortune out of the expected crowds that would come here to register. Large tents were bought and fitted with cots and beds. One firm had 1000 cot beds shipped from Chicago by express.
Another long-headed citizen bought

TRAIL OF DYNAMITERS.

Walter Szalaszkiewicz and His Brother Suspected of an Old Crime in Toledo.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
TOLEDO (O.) June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was learned this evening that Walter Szalaszkiewicz, the Pole who was the defendant in an assault and battery case in Portland last week, and who accused the six men who assaulted him of being anarchists bent upon killing the President, is a brother of Peter Szalaszkiewicz, a grocer of this city. Back of this discovery lies a story, revealed by an investigation of the relationship, which discloses how Walter came to be in Oregon.
In 1885, Father Lewandowski, a Polish priest, was killed when his house was dynamited. The priest was a great favorite. In some manner, suspicion attached to the two Szalaszkiewicz brothers. One night their house was surrounded by an angry mob of Poles, and the brothers' lives were threatened. So serious became the outbreak that firearms were used. Just how the trial ended could not be learned, but at any rate Walter left the city, going West.
In the riot following the dynamiting, according to the statements of several Poles today, several people were injured and three persons were killed.

So great has been the strain he has imposed on himself during this session of Congress that his friends are apprehensive lest serious consequences will follow if he does not take complete rest during the balance of the summer.
The President has been advised that if he does not get unbroken rest this summer he may have occasion to regret it. And therefore a very quiet

The Duven Brothers of London and New York have just completed the purchase, at the price of £250,000 ($1,500,000) of the famous collection of works of art formed by the late Oscar Hainauer, and in a fortnight's time this extraordinary rich gathering of bronzes, terra cotta, marbles, ivories, tapestries, furniture and falense, by far the finest of its kind that any German private collector could boast of, will be added to the other treasures of the Duven Brothers in their London showrooms.

There is some discussion among members of the California delegation about the right of Los Angeles to use the water as it chooses. The discussion arises chiefly over the provision inserted in the President's suggestion, that the city shall not have the right to dispose of the water to private individuals or corporations, for redistribution by the latter.

Swift, got himself arrested for disorderly conduct this afternoon.

Swift's strange action drew crowds that blocked Broadway and Wall street, until Policeman Roth of the Old Slip Station arrested him on the steps of Morgan's office. He was taken to the Tombs court, where, after a discussion of his actions and principles

HARVARD LOSES TRAINER.

Dissatisfaction of Football Men Said to Be Responsible for McMaster's Immediate Dismissal.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
BOSTON (Mass.) June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A sensation was created in Harvard alumni and college sporting circles today by the news that "Scotty" McMaster, the famous Harvard football athletic trainer, has been dismissed by the athletic authorities. John McMaster is a native of Scotland, and has been training Harvard athletes for ten years, working himself more and more into their lives, till he had almost become a Harvard institution. That he would ever leave was the last thought of the athletes. He has been an athletic trainer all his life, beginning when 17 years old, and continuing in harness thirty-four years. He began with the Princeton Tigers, where he remained seven years, during which time Princeton attained her athletic supremacy. He invented the football jacking dummy, and that year his team was made up of the greatest tacklers on the field. He was with Wisconsin four months, then came to Harvard, and has been here ever since. His dismissal is said to be due to dissatisfaction among the football men.

Trust Magnates Remain in Workhouse at Toledo as Sample of It.

Agent of Bridge Company a Victim of Evidence Along a Deadly Parallel.

Sensational Effort to Slew Papers from a Desk in Lima Courtroom.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
TOLEDO (O.) June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With Judge Kinkade in Toledo handling the ice trust men whom Prosecutor Wachenheimer has convicted and with Prosecutor Welty before Judge Cunningham in Lima fighting the bridge trust tooth and nail, northwest Ohio is somewhat disturbed in its trust interests.

Late this afternoon, Public Servants Sabin and Jackson informed Judge Kinkade that under no conditions would the Board of Public Service, in its capacity of Parole Board, in any way interfere with justice, as meted out by the court, in spite of the statements alleged to have been made by them last night that they would immediately release the ice barons from the workhouse.

JUDGE ENFORCING SENTENCES.

It developed today in the two hearings for modifications of sentences that Judge Kinkade was enforcing the law.

GRANTED A MODIFICATION.
R. Compton Lemmon and Roland C. Beard were granted a modification in the morning, their sentences being reduced to $25,000 fine and six months. A similar reduction was granted Joseph Miller in the afternoon.

TOLEDO BRIDGE AGENT.

Harry G. Hammond, the Toledo agent of the Canton Bridge Company, was practically proven guilty of being in a conspiracy in restraint of trade, this afternoon, in the fight in court at Lima against the bridge pool graft. This is because Trial Judge W. H. Cunningham admitted testimony as to pools in other counties. By the rules of evidence, this testimony of pools is not admitted until the court is satisfied that the State has made its case.

"I suppose it's another Toledo ice trust case for me," remarked Hammond.

The trial today was extremely sensational, evidence showing that the desk in the courtroom had been broken open and robbed the night before, in the hope of getting papers containing evidence.

UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Warrants were issued today for thirteen members of Philadelphia's big ice trust. The affidavits upon which Dist. Atty. Bell acted charges conspiracy to do an unlawful act by raising and fixing the price for which ice should be sold. The men accused will be given a hearing before Magistrate Eisenbren Monday morning.

MISSOURI'S SHOW-DOWN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
ST. LOUIS (Mo.) June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Investigation of the ice trust in St. Louis has begun. Gov. Folk, while in St. Louis Wednesday, discussed the ice investigation with Sager. Before returning to Jefferson City, the Governor said the fight on the trust had begun in Kansas City, and that the authorities in other towns were ready to begin.

President Charles W. Whitelaw of the Polar Wave Ice Company, which controls 50 per cent. of the ice business in St. Louis, tonight announced that there would be no further increases in the price of ice this summer. He denied that his company was in any trust or combine.

Under the direction of Assistant Circuit Attorney Fickelissen, the grand jury this afternoon began an investigation of the trust in this city. Much important information has been gathered concerning the building-up of high-prices by the ice men here and the suffering brought on the poor thereby.

FROM GILL, THAW CALLS ON STOCK.

Slayer of White Has a Remarkable Letter in Woman's Handwriting Which He Wants Suppressor of Vice to See—Accused Indicted.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—One of the interesting developments today was that Thaw had invited Anthony Comstock to call upon him. Thaw called Comstock's office by telephone while he was in the criminal court building, and asked for "A. C." and said:

"I have received this morning a very remarkable letter, which I think it will pay to investigate. I would like to have you see me in the Tombs this afternoon without fail, even if you have to represent yourself to be my special counsel."

The letter referred to was received yesterday. It is in a woman's handwriting. The letter was unintentionally given to Thaw. The contents have not been disclosed.

A representative of Mr. Comstock called during the afternoon, but he was not permitted to see Thaw.

NEW YORK, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] No development today in the Thaw-White murder case was so significant as the coming crusade against the city's wealthy libertines as the fact that Harry K. Thaw, indicted for murder, called upon Anthony Comstock, president of the Society for the Prevention of Vice, and arranged an appointment with him at the Tombs today.

This telephone message is almost positive proof that Thaw will support his defense by an investigation of the lives which a number of social professional and wealthy perverts have lived for years in defiance of every law of statute book and decency.

That Thaw's lawyers oppose this interview of their client with the notoriety of vice, and that they will try to prevent it, is another proof that the young Pittsburgh millionaire has at last found himself; that he has his own ideas of fighting for his life, and that the murder trial which will follow shortly will be full of sensation.

Thaw's connection with Anthony Comstock came as a surprise to White's friends. There is obvious unrest in the Bohemian circle, that knew no limit, if common report is to be believed, in the search for new sensations.

"I am ready to go before the grand jury at any moment," said Mr. Comstock, "and in that case I shall give them every scrap of evidence in my possession bearing on the case, and on the hideous network of vice in this city, which in its horror excels the worst excesses of Rome in the century of Nero."

"I am convinced that the aim of that unfortunate young man now in the Tombs was inspired not only by a sentiment for the wrong which he believed his wife had suffered at the hands of White, but by a desire to rid the world of a man whom he believed to be unfit to live."

SECRET OF THAW'S HATED.

One great grievance has rankled in Thaw's mind for months after months, and this was that before his marriage the present Mrs. Thaw went to a lawyer in this city to begin a civil suit against him. In this action, she made an extraordinary affidavit, a document giving details of such a nature that there was no probability that he would permit it to go on the records if he had it in his power to suppress it by making a payment, even though he might believe he was being blackmailed. Thaw paid, and then he made Evelyn Nesbit his bride.

If the girl and her lawyers had been the only persons in the world who had seen this affidavit Thaw would have had little cause for worry. He had reason to believe White had not only been consulted about the proceeding, but that he had a hand in its inception and knew every word that had been written.

This suit was the secret of Thaw's hatred for White, so far as the evidence discloses. Mrs. Thaw may have inflamed her husband's mind and may have urged vengeance, but there remained the one great grievance of his own that White certainly knew of, if he had not actually dictated the humiliating passages of the affidavit.

WILL TO BREAK NEWS.

After an extended family council, held in the Lorraine Wednesday night, it was determined that Mr. and Mrs. George L. Carnegie, daughter and son-in-law of Mrs. William Thaw, should take the first vessel for England to meet the prisoner's mother and acquaint her with the details of the crime for which her son is now under indictment.

They sailed at 9 o'clock today on the Deutschland, of the Hamburg-American line. Communication with relatives in Pittsburgh was maintained by telephone and telegraph and it was finally concluded that they were the only ones who could make the trip at the moment without injuring the case of Harry Thaw.

DIDN'T WANT TO MEET WHITE.

It is being told, triumphantly, in society, that before Harry Thaw married Evelyn Nesbit, in April, 1903, he told her she had been the very dear friend of White. She told him candidly, too, just how she first met that brilliant man, and she gave Thaw the name of the woman who made them acquainted. She told him, too, that the arguments used overcame her suddenly scruples. One was that the architect was a man of position and influence in New York, generous, wealthy, a power in the theatrical world.

WHITE'S NEW PROTEGE.

It developed today that White had a new protegee whom he hoped to place on the stage in Josephine Brown, a beautiful English girl, who will soon celebrate her seventeenth birthday.

Little Miss Brown lives with her mother in a fine apartment at the Rutland, Fifty-seventh and Broadway. Their apartment is on the ground floor, and there is a private entrance on the street, which White used on his frequent visits. Sometimes in the afternoon, but most frequently White called in the evening and took the girl out with him.

THAW INDICTED FOR MURDER.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—Harry K. Thaw was indicted today for murder in the first degree for killing Stanford White in Madison Square Roof Garden.

His wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, appeared as a witness before the grand jury, but was excused from giving testimony by Asst. Dist. Atty. Garvin and by the jurors, who did not insist that she answer questions.

Thaw will plead to the indictment in court tomorrow morning. No time will be set for the trial until Dist. Atty. Jerome returns to the city next week. In the meantime, witnesses have been summoned to appear in John Doe proceedings at the District Attorney's office.

The grand jury's consideration of the case followed an indictment by a coroner's jury, which heard the testimony of several eyewitnesses, and rendered a formal verdict that White's death had been caused by Thaw.

Thaw calmly listened to the testimony, and while the jury was out he was started by his counsel and a policeman, sitting nearby, laughing loud at one stage of the conversation.

When the jury had completed its verdict Thaw was recommitted to the Tombs without bail.

Mrs. Thaw, following her appearance before the grand jury, crossed the bridge to her husband's cell, and they talked together for a long time.

PRISONER OF CURIOUS.

When Mrs. Thaw attempted to leave she found her way blocked by the largest crowd, the police say, that has ever gathered about a structure. She was virtually held a prisoner by the inquisitive throng for thirty minutes, when police reserves managed to clear a way for her.

White was buried today, with simple services, at St. James, L. I., where he had a summer home. The services were held in St. James Episcopal Church and the interment was in the churchyard.

In the opinion of the physician who performed the autopsy on White's body, the life of the architect was shortened not more than two years by the strain of the plot.

White was found to be suffering from Bright's disease, from incipient tuberculosis and from fatty degeneration of the liver.

Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, the expert on mental disorders who has been retained by the defense, spent an hour and a half with Thaw today. At the end of his examination, Dr. Hamilton said he would make a confidential report of his examination to Judge Olcott.

Thaw sent a message from the Tombs to Anthony Comstock, president of the Society for the Prevention of Vice, saying he had received a letter which it would pay Mr. Comstock to investigate.

EVELYN THAW NOT LIGHT.

Mrs. Thaw's appearance before the grand jury had been looked forward to with considerable interest, as it was thought she might possibly throw some additional light upon the tragedy. When she appeared to be excused from testifying, the jury took the view that, for the purpose of an indictment, her evidence was not necessary.

After being ushered into the grand jury room Mrs. Thaw was asked:

"What is your name?"

"Evelyn Nesbit Thaw."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty years."

"What year did you last see and meet Stanford White, the deceased?"

"Without becoming excited in the least, she replied clearly, with composure on each word:

"Without becoming excited in the least, she replied clearly, with composure on each word:

"I hope that you gentlemen will not insist that I shall answer any more questions than I must respectfully decline to answer the questions you intend to ask me. I say this with all respect to you, gentlemen."

"and his face was very white. After the shooting I heard him say, 'He ruined my wife, and I did it.'"

Warner Paxton, an engineer, testified that he accompanied the prisoner and Mrs. Thaw down in the elevator. When asked as to what conversation passed between Thaw and Mrs. Thaw, he said: "The woman said, 'Look at the fit you have pushed yourself into now.'"

"What did Thaw say?"

"He said: 'It's all right, dearie. I have probably ruined the act of my life.'"

Anthony L. Debes, the policeman who arrested Thaw, said the prisoner was very cool and calm before he was taken from the building.

"Did you notice anything irrational about him?" asked the assistant district attorney.

"No, nothing irrational," replied Debes.

The next witness was Lionel Lawrence, stage manager of the Madison Square Roof Garden Theater. He said he knew White and Thaw; that he saw White twenty-five minutes before he was killed and saw Thaw two minutes before the fatal shots were fired.

"Did you see the shooting?"

"Yes, that is, I heard the first shot, and, turning around, I saw the second shot fired. Then I saw Mr. White fall from the chair."

"What did you do next?"

"I immediately ran to the stage and called to the company to go on with the play. Then I ran back and saw Fireman Brumby, who was guarding Thaw. Then I put my hand on Thaw's shoulder."

"Did you see Mrs. Thaw?"

"Yes, she came running around Thaw and exclaimed: 'Never mind, Harry, I'll stick to you through thick and thin.'"

"Did Thaw say anything?"

"He said to me: 'That ruined my wife, and I got him and fixed him.'"

"What was the appearance of Thaw?"

"He was very white, and his eyes were staring out of his head. Coroner Dooley then gave the case to the jury and it retired."

While the jury was out, Thaw, his counsel and the policeman conversed together, the prisoner laughing and chatting naturally with them.

The jury returned after an absence of about three minutes, and announced that it had reached a verdict. The jury's report follows:

JURY'S VERDICT.

"We find that said Stanford White came to his death on the 15th day of June, 1906, at Madison Square roof garden, Twenty-sixth street and Madison avenue, by cerebral hemorrhage caused by a pistol shot wound of the skull inflicted at the time and place foreseen by Harry Kendall Thaw."

Thaw was called to the bar and was committed to the city prison without bail. The prisoner was taken back to his cell in the Tombs.

Immediately after the conclusion of the case, the grand jury began its consideration of the case.

Among the witnesses called before the grand jury were Thaw, Thaw's counsel, an actress and close friend of Mrs. Thaw, Mrs. Thaw's maid, and after which she visited her husband in the Tombs.

When Mrs. Thaw started to leave the Tombs she was called on by her husband, the street in front of the prison entrance was so densely packed that she was unable to get out. She was pushed back into the prison by a crowd of about twenty minutes in the corridor.

The crowd around the Tombs today was one of the largest in the city gathered about a structure.

Thaw passed a rather restless night in the Tombs.

The District Attorney's office completed the examination of the more important witnesses so far discovered yesterday, and it directed the grand jury to return a bill of indictment against Thaw on the charge of murder in the first degree.

The report that White made an involuntary confession about Mrs. Thaw on the night of the shooting, which was overheard by her husband, is groundless, so far as I have been able to ascertain. Any perfect for telling that nothing that happened Monday night had anything to do with the shooting. The deed was planned before.

"That White talked about Mrs. Thaw after her marriage is heard on all sides, but that she was unable to run down a single specific instance in which her name is mentioned by him in a derogatory manner, I never knew of, and there were so many rumors which were without a grain of truth."

MRS. THAW SLEEPLESS.

Mrs. Thaw seems living on the excitement of the moment. It is said that she is unable to sleep, and that she is staying, that she sleeps little, and every possible moment of her time has, so far, been taken up with consultations with her friends, and with the lawyers employed by her husband. She looked even more careworn yesterday than on the day before.

Mrs. Thaw has been instructed by her husband to furnish to him every scrap of writing she has from White. She has promised to look for more of the letters.

She was connected with the Equitable Life Assurance Society said last night that Stanford White's life was insured in that company for $100,000 by policies taken out at various times in the past twenty years. During that period, it was said, White paid the company $1,000 in premiums, and the policies were made payable to his wife. White was heavily insured in other companies as well. None of the Equitable policies had been taken out recently, so far as could be learned.

CZAR ACTS ON DEADLY HINTS.

Tottering Throne Frightens Haughty Monarch.

Eyes Opened by Attitude of Favorite Troops.

Surprising Concessions Made in Several Cases.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 28.—The campaign, which the opposition elements in Parliament are waging to compel Emperor Nicholas to dismiss the Goremynkin ministry and accept the principle of a responsible ministry promise to be successful soon.

Both the Emperor and the court are being frightened into surrender by the alarming spread of revolutionary ideas among the troops. When the Prochodskiy Regiment, "His Majesty's Own," pronounced its solidarity with Parliament at Krasnoe-Selo, less than a dozen miles from the Peterhof palace, the Emperor's eyes opened and the court began to realize that there was only a step from that to declaring allegiance against the government.

Even the Procurator-General of the Holy Synod, M. Pobodonsky, who today celebrated the sixtieth jubilee of his entrance into the service of the state, while permitting that he had not recently, is said to have reversed the position of a lifetime and to have advised the Emperor to yield to the demand for a responsible ministry as the only means of preserving the throne.

GOVERNMENT SHOWS FEAR.

The government's sudden fear of affronting public opinion after finding the army infected with the revolutionary propaganda is shown in the hurried grant of a new trial to seven men condemned to death at Riga, the acquittal of six others and the commutation of death sentences imposed on three murderers of the foreman of the Putlovsk iron works.

The news from the provinces shows that general anarchy is growing. In Altai and Tauride provinces the peasants are abandoning the fields, and in the province of Novgorod are marching through the country, dragging in their wake not only the workers from the fields, but the domestic servants of the nobles.

In the Baltic provinces the Governor-General has again granted the land owners permission to organize armed police, and in the province of Riga, which is headed by Count Heydorn, has at last bowed to the storm of revolution and declared in favor of practically the whole of the constitutional demands of the agrarian programme, including the expropriation of state and private lands.

CONCESSIONS COME TOO LATE.

The agrarian scheme drawn for the government by M. Stuchinski, Minister of Agriculture, is now completed but has not been finally approved. It still rejects the principle of expropriation, but contains enormous concessions from the programme announced by Premier Goremynkin three weeks ago by providing for the distribution of all lands belonging to the peasant banks and the colonization of peasants, etc. Such a scheme, proposed at the opening of Parliament, might have helped to stem the tide of revolution from the government, it comes too late.

MORE DEMANDS MADE.

Parliament seems practically to have abandoned its attempts to frame legislation. Its whole energy is directed to attacking the government by the medium of interpellations, for the double purpose of strengthening its authority with the masses and curtailing the ministry.

Today the presentation of the Bulyatov report was again postponed. The interpellations began with a demand to know why the government prohibited the proposed meeting of the Peasants' League at St. Petersburg while permitting that of the nobles, and also why the members of the Peasants' League arrested at Moscow months ago have not been released.

The Constitutional Democrats were hurriedly summoned to a caucus this afternoon and it was again postponed in the corridors of the lower house of Parliament that negotiations are proceeding with them for the formation of a ministry headed by M. Mourmestov, President of the lower house.

HARRIMAN MAKES CHANGES.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The following appointments effective July 1 were announced today from the traffic department of the Harriman lines in this city: William McMurray, to be general passenger agent of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company, Vice A. L. Craig, resigned; John M. Scott, to be assistant general passenger agent of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company, promoted; McMurray and Scott will also become general passenger agent and assistant general passenger agent, respectively, of the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One death and ten preparations, at least two of which may result fatally, were reported today as a result of the unseasonable heat, combined with a degree of humidity not common. This takes no account of sufferers in hospitals, to whom the weather conditions brought additional pain. The day was the hottest of the present season, reaching a maximum temperature of 93 deg. during the afternoon. At 10 o'clock tonight, the mercury still registered 86 deg. Minimum temperature for the day was 73 deg. Middle West temperatures:

NUDE WIFE IN RUN FOR LIFE.

Santa Fe Springs Scared by Flying Spectre.

Edward Schandoney Shoots Himself and Spouse.

She Jumps Through Window and Rushes Up Street.

The entire population of Santa Fe Springs was scared out of its wits early yesterday morning by the melodramatic efforts of a half-crazed, almost nude, blood-besotted woman to explain to her husband, Edward Schandoney, had shot and wounded her, perhaps fatally, in a determination to put an end to his entire family.

EDWARD SCHANDONEY.

which was entirely successful so far as he was concerned.

The immediate subsequent surprise of Schandoney was tame in comparison with the attending thrilling features of the case, which sent practically the entire census list of the town scurrying to the hills.

Schandoney for twenty-eight years had survived the swift pace of life at Santa Fe Springs, which is about fourteen miles southeast of Los Angeles and two and a half miles from the nearest railroad in a district gridlocked with steam and trolley lines. Awakening yesterday morning to realize that he had been discharged the night before from his position on Piermont's ranch, near Whittier, where he had been employed for several years, and with but $30 between him and absolute penury, Schandoney reached for his revolver, and arousing his wife, proposed that he and she and their two-year-old girl, sleeping peacefully between them, all die together.

Believing his husband to be but talking idly, the woman half-awake, turned from him. Instantly he leveled the pistol and shot her through the back.

STRUGGLE FOR REVOLVER.
Turning upon the would-be murderer like a tigress, Mrs. Schandoney, who is strong and well-built, struggled wildly to secure possession of the revolver, while he with the frenzy of a maniac, fought for the opportunity to shoot her again.

Over the bed they fought like furious beasts, the husband cursing and swearing, the woman screaming. With one hand she clutched his wrist and held the muzzle of the revolver away from her body, while with the other she sought his throat, striking, biting, clawing with her nails, and all the time fighting for her own life, pushing the heavy bulk of the crazed brute from her helpless child still lying prone beneath them.

Certainly it was the fury of despair that gave Mrs. Schandoney the power finally to wrest the revolver from the grip of her husband, and with the weapon in her hand she sped through the house, with him scrambling breathless after her.

In the rear of the kitchen of the humble little house, which they have just finished paying for, there is a square window covered by a screen. Baring the grasp of her husband, Mrs. Schandoney dove through the screen head foremost, striking the ground outside apparently uninjured by the fall.

Not attempting to pursue her farther, Schandoney turned back, reaching the bedroom he placed the muzzle of an old single-barrel shotgun to the pit of his stomach, and leaning far over, pulled the trigger. He collapsed upon the floor and probably died instantly. The baby sat up in bed and screamed in infantile terror.

But Mrs. Schandoney called for nothing. Her night gown torn to shreds, covered with her own blood and the dust of the yard, brandishing the revolver in one hand, she ran screaming down the road to the house of the nearest neighbor.

Mrs. James Ellis had heard the commotion, and when she saw Mrs. Schandoney coming like mad in her bloody plight, she grabbed her children and fled through the back door and shrieking through the town.

STANDS DISHEVELED ON STOOP.
Hammering with the butt of her revolver upon the Ellis front door, Mrs. Schandoney attracted the immediate attention of the neighbors in the vicinity, and unanimously concluding that they had to do with a demented creature running amuck, they suddenly decamped.

Gaining no response from the Ellis home, Mrs. Schandoney fled down the road to the house of Mrs. Weaver. That lady, while she saw the poor creature coming, had not sufficient warning to get away, but frantically barring her doors, she fled to an upper window, whence she flew a stream of distress and wildly called for help.

In the name of God let me in, she in. screamed Mrs. Schandoney, battering on the door with her revolver, while Mrs. Weaver cowered and waited for the end.

Shunned by all who had known her

Pure, Healthful, Refreshing Apollinaris

"The Queen of Table Waters"

as a creature stricken with plague, Mrs. Schandoney turned again frantically to whatever other source of aid might offer. Coming up the road in her buggy, she espied Mrs. F. M. Koonitz, of whom she and her husband had bought their humble property but three weeks before, and to her she turned frantically.

But Mrs. Koonitz saw the woman and the revolver at the same moment. She did not scream, but she compressed her lips and with her whip lashed the staid old nag into a gallop.

Mrs. Schandoney seeing her last hope of aid escaping, gave chase down the road. Mrs. Koonitz turned the corner into the main road on two wheels and bore down on the village store, of which her husband is the proprietor.

This was the terrifying scene which hurried itself upon the vision of the loungers about the village loading place. As soon as they recognized Mrs. Schandoney purloining the liquor, the fact that they had for long adjoined both her husband and herself somewhat off mentally, and they fell all over themselves in beating for precipitate retreat through the back door of the store.

SISTER HEARS STORY.
But Koonitz's sister, a buxom young woman who lives in Los Angeles, had no opportunity of getting away from behind the counter, and she confronted Mrs. Schandoney alone, and first heard her explanation of the tragic affair.

Firm in the conviction that Schandoney was still alive and lying in wait for them with his shotgun, the male population of Santa Fe Springs, gravitating cautiously toward the little red house of tragedy a block from the store, and sat about discussing ways and means for overpowering the man whom they had no doubt had suddenly developed in violent form a dementia of which he had given evidence for years.

Urged on finally by the scornful abjections of the female portion of the population to whom the cries of the frightened child, never for a moment relaxed, appealed more strongly than any physical fear, they ventured gradually nearer and nearer, until at 11:30 o'clock, three hours after the tragedy, the first valiant citizen of Santa Fe Springs set foot in the scrubby and ill-kept little front yard.

As he was not immediately shot down with a charge of buck shot, the entire male population of the town poured in, and looked curiously through the bedroom window.

There they saw the little child sitting up in bed crying piteously, and weakly attempting to fight off the millions of flies that swarmed suggestively about.

HUSBAND'S BODY FOUND.
On the floor lay the body of Schandoney, the shotgun underneath him, and an ooze of blood all around, fairly buried beneath a hideous swarm of flies.

The child was rescued, the Coroner notified, and the house locked. At the same time Mrs. Schandoney was driven to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Pickering, at Whittier, where the doctors after an examination pronounced her chances of recovery good.

Schandoney is survived by five brothers, all small farmers living in the vicinity of Santa Fe Springs. Insanity has run in the family for years. The mother died in an asylum, and a sister, Mrs. Eli Hawkins, killed herself at Santa Monica several years ago.

Mrs. Schandoney was regarded by her neighbors as being queer, and the pair generally was given a wide berth in the little town so that they led a decidedly isolated life.

CLAIMS KANAKA KILLED MOTHER.

REDWOOD GIRL SWEARS OUT MURDER WARRANT.

Coroner's Jury Decides Mrs. McDonald Was Strangled to Death by Unknown Person of Great Strength. Case Similar to Minnie Williams' Murder in San Francisco.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—P.M.)
REDWOOD CITY, June 28.—A warrant sworn to by Miss Lillian McDonald, daughter of Mrs. Brandrup, charging George C. Jones, a Kanaka, with killing her mother, was served on Jones last night and today he was taken to South San Francisco to be formally charged with the crime. The examination will be held next Tuesday, July 2, at South San Francisco.

Jones was returned here immediately after being arraigned. He has employed no attorney and says he will make his own defense.

WOMAN STRANGLED TO DEATH.
(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—The inquest held yesterday into the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Brandrup, who was strangled and her body thrown into a storeroom at the back of the Linden Hotel in South San Francisco June 22, has served to deepen the mystery surrounding the murder.

The coroner's jury makes no accusation against any person, stating only that Mrs. Brandrup was choked to death by an unknown person, possessed of great strength.

In many of its phases the crime is similar to the one of which Minnie Williams was the victim in this city several years ago, Theodore Durant being her murderer.

CRIME BRIEFS.
Jury Hard to Get in Murder Case.
SEATTLE, June 28.—The State has exercised the right of peremptory challenge in four instances and the defense in six in the trial of George Mitchell on the charge of murdering Joshua Creffield, the Oregon "holly roller" leader. Four days have been consumed in a futile effort to obtain a jury.

Man and Wife Found Dead.
ST. JOSEPH (Mo.), June 28.—The decomposed bodies of Alfred Bettles and his wife were found in bed at their home here today, with a bullet hole in the head of each. Circumstances indicate that Bettles murdered his wife and killed himself on Monday. He is known to have been jealous of her.

CHANGE IN DIRECTORS. Another Step Toward the Consolidation of the Security Savings and Southern California Banks.

Directors of the Southern California Savings Bank met yesterday afternoon, when J. M. Elliott, W. C. Patterson, H. Jevne and J. H. Braly resigned from the directorate of the banks. In their places were elected as directors: W. G. Kerckhoff, J. P. Sartori, Maurice S. Hellman and W. D. Longyear. The directorate thus formed elected W. G. Kerckhoff president, succeeding J. H. Braly, on Saturday night. Mr. Braly retires from all connection with the bank and W. G. Kerckhoff on Monday morning becomes president.

The general management of the institution will be in the hands of W. D. Woolwine, C. H. Toll and A. H. Braly. Mr. Woolwine and Mr. Toll will remain with the Southern California Savings Bank till its merger with the Security Savings Bank, and will be active officers and directors in the consolidated institution.

A. H. Braly, now vice-president and a member of the directorate, will remain temporarily. The consolidation will probably be about the first of next year.

A semi-annual dividend on term deposits was declared at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, and on ordinary deposits at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum. A semi-annual stock dividend was declared at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the capital and surplus of $40,000.

The officers and employees of the bank were entertained by J. H. Braly last night at the Belasco Theater.

Following are resolutions adopted by the directorate yesterday subsequent to the retirement of J. H. Braly, and also resolutions respecting the resignations of Messrs. Elliott, Patterson and Jevne:

The resignation of Hon. J. H. Braly, as president of the Southern California Savings Bank, having been tendered and duly accepted, it becomes the privilege of the directorate to voice its grateful appreciation of the credit service rendered by him during an early season of distress, he appearing as the representative of the bank in his tireless energy and unremitting solicitude for the welfare of its depositors, ever actuated by a conscientious desire to build up a sound and profitable institution for the purpose of a foundation for the great future of the community, which his courageous optimism fostered and evolved during the intervening years.

Under his able administration this community has witnessed the almost magical development of deposits from a few hundred to millions, and the association of depositors for the welfare and advancement of its fellow men, earnest in his efforts to inculcate the habit of saving among the young, as well as the adult, buoyant and generous in his aid to the needy, and his ability in other fields, he has stood in the leadership of this bank as a most helpful and an inspiration to those who were fortunate enough to be associated with him.

His wide-diversified patrons and the general public have achieved by his institution is attributable.

Having now determined to seek immunity from the future, the directorate of a multi-million dollar bank, while in the full of its life, has decided to retire from the bank, speaking for ourselves and for the board of directors, we have no doubt that we have faithfully served the community, and we have no doubt that the directorate of the bank, which has been a source of pride and honor to the community, will be a source of pride and honor to the community.

It is resolved, that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the corporation.

THANKS TO THREE.
Whereas, in the process of the reorganization of the Southern California Savings Bank, three highly-esteemed and successful business men, J. M. Elliott, W. C. Patterson and H. Jevne, have resigned from the directorate of the bank, and whereas, throughout an anxious and arduous period, they have rendered the most valuable and efficient service to the bank, and whereas, their resignation, and the resignation of J. H. Braly, have been accepted, and the directorate of the bank, which has been a source of pride and honor to the community, will be a source of pride and honor to the community.

It is resolved, that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the corporation.

REAL ESTATE SALES.
Property on the Hills Sold at Highest Prices Yet Recorded in That Part of the City.

The Keefer property is reported sold at $30,000. The property has a frontage of 60 feet on Grand avenue, 145 along the south side of First street, and 145 on the north side of First street. It is improved with a two-story house of about twelve rooms on the Grand-avenue frontage, and a two-story house on the First-street frontage. The rate is probably the highest yet recorded in that part of the city, being $400 a front foot, counting only the Grand-avenue frontage. The buyer is Mrs. Shields.

Another sale is reported on Grand avenue, north of the corner of Grand street. This is a lot 54x125 feet, and is reported sold by Taylor & Garcelon at $10,000. This is a comparatively new real estate firm in Los Angeles, which reports a fairly active demand for good property. It is a midsummer sale the one just reported is very good.

The firm is adding materially to its facilities for doing business. The purchase of No. 127 South Flower street, a two-story house, which the purchaser, S. Cahen, buys the property from Louis Schwars for $25,000. The property is a fourteen-room house on a lot 16x16 feet to a 20-foot alley. A firm of this city has just leased the property for ten years at a net rental of 6 per cent. on the purchase price. The property was previously reported as being sold, but the deal depended on the lease, which was consummated. The sale was made through the agency of R. A. Rowan & Co.

W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. report the sale from R. G. Beebe to Cribb & Sinclair, Jennie C. Cribb and Clark Briggs, of a lot 60x165 feet on the west side of Hope street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, No. 407-9 South Hope street, for $15,000. The present nominal improvements will be removed and purchasers will improve the property with a $50,000 apartment house.

The northeast corner of Washington and Toberman streets, 100x125 feet, has been sold by John O. Lowe to D. E. Wellcome for a consideration of $14,000. The property was purchased as an investment and may be improved later.

The southwest corner of Washington street and Staunton avenue, 60x120 feet to alley, improved with a two-story frame store building, has also been sold by John O. Lowe & Co. for J. Varley to A. H. Merwin. Consideration $4000.

Free Trading Stamps Tomorrow.

We give L. A. Green Trading Stamps with every purchase of 10c or over, but we are going to do better still tomorrow morning. With every purchase of $1 or over you will be given a book containing 25 stamps, in addition to those that go regularly with the sale. That is, if you buy $2.50 worth of merchandise, this would entitle you to 25 stamps, and the extra book of 25 additional, making 50 stamps in all, with a $2.50 purchase. These stamps are just the same as money, as the stamp store takes them in exchange for handsome premiums. Get the stamp habit. This offer is open for tomorrow morning only—until 12:30 p.m.

MURDER IS MYSTERY.

VICTIM SHIELDS ASSAILANT.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—Thomas Petto was found about 2 o'clock this morning with a pistol wound in his back, lying on the sidewalk at Forsythe street, one of the most densely populated sections of the city. He was alive, and conscious, but when the police asked him the name of his assailant, he pleaded the "code of honor," which prohibits a man assaulted from giving any information to the authorities. Then, declaring he would get even, and that there had been "no trouble in which the police had any interest," he was taken to the hospital just a few minutes before he died.

ROW OVER STATUE.
Sculptor Niehaus Objects to St. Louis Work Being Made Permanent Without Extra Pay.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—The National Sculpture Society has appointed a committee to investigate the action of the board of directors of the World's Fair in St. Louis in making permanent the model of the statue of St. Louis by Charles H. Niehaus, the New York sculptor, without, it is alleged, Mr. Niehaus's consent.

It was reported some time ago that the directors purposed to punish Mr. Niehaus for asking extra payment for the statue of St. Louis by omitting his name from the statue.

Capt. W. R. Hodges, who will erect the statue, was quoted as saying that when President Francis told Mr. Niehaus that his statue was to be permanent in Forest Park, the sculptor replied that he must have extra payment.

When President Francis wrote to Mr. Niehaus to come to St. Louis in order that a compromise might be effected the offer was rejected.

BURIED IN SAND PIT.
Plumber Fights Death Many Hours and is Finally Taken Out Unconscious.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—A.M.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—After fighting against death for more than twenty-two hours, Jeremiah Fisher, a plumber, was rescued alive today from a sand pit at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, in which he had been imprisoned since yesterday forenoon.

Fisher is in a pitiable condition from exhaustion and may not survive.

He was working in an excavation when the passing street car loosened the ground and sent down an avalanche of sand upon him. The sand piled up to his chest, and he was as in a vise and gradually rising until only his head was visible.

When daylight came the rescuers had succeeded in uncovering the im-

FIESTA FUNDS SHOW SURPLUS.

Committee's Report Gives Details of Expenses.

Great Success of the Display Helps the City.

Will Be Repeated on Grand Scale Next Year.

The after-work of the 1906 Fiesta is concluded, and the reports are in the hands of the directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association. This year's great floral celebration has been economically conducted, as well as being a spectacular success in point of natural and scientific display. The fund on hand was not all used up, as the amount subscribed and received was $34,827.50, while only $21,825.28 was expended—thus leaving a comfortable balance of $13,002.22.

The committee appointed to audit the accounts was composed of Niles Pease, C. C. Desmond and Frank Simpson. Notation of the individual expenditures is interesting. The largest disbursement is to M. H. Flint, chairman of the shrine executive committee, in payment of expenses incurred and contracts made for the entertainment of the Shrine. Mr. Flint received $10,000 to settle his bill. The largest single item, however, is that of the electric parade, which cost $10,532.82.

Other items and disbursements are: Labor, $21,825.28; floral parade, $24,821.91; street decorations, $2,700; music, $1,700; printing and advertising, $902.63; day fireworks, $548; street wiring, $460; driving club machine, $250; office expenses, $223.67; rebate Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, money advanced, $110; insurance, $15.

The executive committee of the Fiesta, composed of R. H. Herron, M. A. Hamburger, Oscar C. Morgan, George E. Bittinger and P. J. Zeehandelaar, also delivers its report. This committee takes occasion to boost the celebrations of next year, in timely advance, and dwells briefly upon the advertising and other advantages which the great carnival affords. Leaving out matters of finance already explained, this report says:

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.
"In common with the people of Los Angeles we regretted that circumstances deprived us of the pleasure of entertaining the visitors, in whose honor the Fiesta had been inaugurated, but the postponement of the meeting of the Imperial Council was decided upon at such a late date that it was impossible for your committee to countermand many of the contracts made, and it was decided in the interests of the community and the entire State of California that the Fiesta be changed from the original date to May 21, 1906.

"We believe that it was our duty to the State of California and to the grief-stricken city of San Francisco to show the world that her spirit was undaunted by the calamity that had befallen her, and with true California spirit we were determined to face the future, notwithstanding the sad blow that had been struck. We are fully compensated for the large amount of work involved in creating the Fiesta by the unanimous public approval of our efforts and we believe that the Fiesta ever has been given in this city that has created such universal commendation as the one just passed.

"In view of the fact that the Imperial Council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine has decided to hold its next meeting in this city in the early part of May, 1907, we submitted to your body a resolution passed by us on June 7 last, wherein we suggested that a Fiesta again be given at that time and that the general plan of handling the Fiesta, the entertainment, and the funds for those purposes, be carried on under the same conditions as this year.

"In view of the vast amount of work required to produce a successful Fiesta, we respectfully suggest that your body appoint at the earliest possible moment an executive committee to commence the arrangements for next year's entertainment.

"We desire to express our sincere thanks to Ad. Petach, the chairman of the electrical parade committee, and to Pawcett Robinson, to whose genial and artistic taste we are indebted for the magnificent electrical parade, as these two gentlemen have excelled from every standpoint any previous parades of this character ever witnessed here or in any other city. They have been indefatigable in their work, devoting at least six months to this task, and their combined efforts have certainly been crowned with great success.

"In this connection we also desire to express our thanks to the young ladies and gentlemen of the Polytechnic High School, who so willingly gave their services to furnish the living parts of the floats. Their public spirit and civic pride prove the patriotic instincts they have manifested in giving their services free of charge and aiding in every possible way, although greatly inconvenienced at times, the great success accomplished.

"To Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow and the members of the floral parade committee we are greatly indebted for the magnificent display of the floral parade. These gentlemen have worked incessantly to obtain cuttings that would justify our reputation as a land of flowers, and the artistic and glorious designs of the floral decorations that were so long a day will long live in the memory of those who were fortunate enough to see it.

"To our ex-Chief of Police, W. A. Hammett, and his aides and his executive ability certainly has shown itself to the best advantage. To him especially, and his aides and division marshals, is due the credit of having the parades start promptly on time, having them move in precise order, so that the great crowds were able to enjoy the magnificent pageants to the fullest extent.

"To the Los Angeles Driving Club is due our sincere thanks for the interesting programme furnished by its members. "In conclusion we congratulate the public-spirited men and women, who so liberally responded to our appeals for financial aid. Unquestionably the Fiesta is one of the greatest factors that advertise our climate, our resources, and our rapid growth to the world, but especially is this true when we are assured of the visit of tens of thousands of the most influential men of the United States and of Canada, who we expect during the month of May. The people of this city should realize that with these visitors, it will proclaim abroad and afar the fact that the State of California has survived the terrible calamity that befell San Francisco and that Southern California was not harmed. We will have an opportunity to show our western spirit, that in the face of the greatest catastrophe we met the future bravely and courageously and that we always are ready to reconstruct where the hand of fate has destroyed.

"We therefore appeal to the public to show as liberal if not a more liberal spirit toward the entertainment of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the Fiesta next year."

CHICAGO STORM KILLS TWO.
CHICAGO, June 28.—Weather conditions that culminated in a severe electrical storm here yesterday were responsible for two deaths and injury to others. The storm temporarily broke a hot spell which threatened to be the most severe of the present season. One victim of the storm was killed by a bolt of lightning, while another fell into the lake, the result of being overcome by the extreme heat. The storm also did considerable damage.

REBELLION MENACES HONDURAS.
NEW ORLEANS, June 28.—Reports that a revolution is threatened in Spanish Honduras; that American residents there are making arrangements to leave the country and that yellow fever quarantine precaution in force on the Honduras coast are in danger of demoralization from the anticipated political upheaval were made public here yesterday by the Louisiana State Board of Health.

NOTED FORESTER WILL WED.

LUKENS-SWETT NUPTIALS TO BE IN PASADENA.

Marriage Will Be Simple in All Its Arrangements With Only the Immediate Relatives of the Two Families Present—Political Coup Is Frustrated in Justiceship Case.

Office of The Times, No. 28 S. Raymond Ave. PASADENA, June 28.—One of the most interesting of the many weddings of the summer time will be that of Hon. T. P. Lukens and Miss H. E. Swett, which will take place next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of the Misses Swett, No. 343 Waverly Drive. The wedding will be very simple in all its arrangements, with only the immediate relatives of the two families present. These will include Mr. Lukens's daughter, Mrs. J. Hamilton Gaut, and her two children, Ralph and Lottie.

Miss Swett and her sister, Miss Lois Swett, have lived in Pasadena for several years, in a beautiful home crowning one of the many hills above the Arroyo Seco. Miss Swett has conducted a preparatory school for boys and girls. She is a dignified, handsome woman of mature age, with a bright and animated countenance.

Mr. Lukens is one of Pasadena's most prominent citizens. He has been for many years foremost in the work of forest preservation, and is giving almost his entire time at present to the duties of his position as supervisor of the forest, under the supervision of San Bernardino county.

He was formerly Mayor of Pasadena, and keeps up his interest in all public questions. His general knowledge of trees and birds and beasts and of all mountain lore has been given freely at times to the school children of Pasadena, his lectures having done much to stir up interest in the source and care of Pasadena's water supply, and he is looked upon by his fellow-citizens as a public benefactor.

ONE SCHEME IS SPOILED. An attempted political coup has been frustrated within the last few days by the intervention of the friends of a candidate who was to have been out of the running. When it was announced that Justice of the Peace Congdon would not be a candidate for reelection, Police Judge McDonald and Attorney E. E. Gray appeared in the field as candidates for the office.

Mr. Gray has a large circle of friends who would like to see him ornamenting the bench, and he concluded that he would not be averse to accepting the post. Judge McDonald thought that an additional office would be agreeable, and announced himself as a candidate.

As the election was still some distance in the future, but little attention has been paid to the matter, other than announcing the candidacy of the rival contestants. A short time ago friends of Judge McDonald came to the conclusion that it might be a good plan to relieve Justice Congdon of his duties, which he was not particularly anxious to retain, and hatched up the plan of having him resign and then petitioning the Supervisors to appoint McDonald as his successor. The petition was duly circulated, but by a mischance one of Gray's friends was approached, and the cat was out of the bag. Now the matter will probably be left until the regular election.

BOTHER OF EXPLOSIVES. Members of the bicycle police squad have been busy the past few days trying to keep small boys in order. The city ordinances which it is unlawful to explode fireworks on any day other than the Fourth of July, but the youngsters seem unable to wait and have been keeping the officers busy.

No orders have been issued as yet by Chief Pinkham concerning the regulations that will be in force on the Fourth but it is unofficially announced that as long as the celebrators do not endanger property they will not be interfered with. Pistols of all kinds are strictly tabooed and will be very likely to land their owners in jail if they are promiscuously displayed around the streets, but fireworks will be allowed on the streets in all sections of the town. The police are determined that the alloys shall be kept clear and will not allow any explosives to be set off behind any buildings.

MERRILL INQUEST. The jury at the coroner's inquest over the remains of George C. Merrill this morning brought in a verdict of death by suicide. All of the evidence pointed to the fact that Merrill came to his death by his own hand and the jury brought in its verdict after a few minutes deliberation.

Witnesses were called to describe the location in which they found the body and the position of the pistol. A bullet hole was found in the right side of the head and the letter found on the body of the young man dispelled all doubts as to the manner in which he came to his death. The funeral services, which will be private, will be held tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be at Mountain View Cemetery.

CROWN CITY POINTS. The project to widen Colorado street between Raymond avenue and Broadway in meeting with general favor and practically no opposition has developed. The most expensive undertaking will be the moving of the south wall of the Union Savings Bank. It may be necessary to move the bank vault, in which case the expense will be considerable, but outside of that the undertaking will not prove as great as was at first anticipated.

The proposed hospital at the Police Station may yet become a fact. When the project was first agitated there was considerable interest manifested on the part of the city councilmen, but interest apparently died out after the first discussion. It is now announced that Chief of Police Pinkham will probably include an appropriation for a receiving hospital in his estimates of the annual expenses of the police department for the coming year. When the estimates will be presented to the Council is not known, as the chief has not completed all of his figures, but it is possible that the matter may be brought up at Tuesday's council meeting.

The dog catcher will not begin operations on July 1, as was the original intention. The city ordinances provide that the owner of a "pup" who does not come forward with the necessary fees must be arrested and his dog impounded. The dog catcher's plan will be worked first and only after dog-owners have had ample opportunity to drop in at the City Hall and pay the required license, will the net and the axphyliator be brought into service.

Justice Klamroth was aroused from sleep last night by a loud pounding on his door and when he had dressed and descended the stairs he found a man and a woman who were desirous of entering into the bonds of matrimony. Although 11 p.m. is not the fashionable hour for weddings in Pasadena the judge determined that he would not be routed out of bed for nothing so, inviting the couple in, he pronounced them man and wife.

The boy claimed that he was not throwing the stones at anybody and that he had no intention of violating the law. Judge Congdon concluded that the boy was not very desperate, anyway, and allowed him to depart.

The annual summer encampment of the Y.M.C.A. will open at Catalina Island on July 2. Plans have been laid for a summer vacation that will include many of the prior camps. A large number of boys have announced that they will be on hand at the appointed time, while the men's camp, which will be held after the close of the camp of the younger men, will be well attended by many prominent Pasadenans.

A practical as well as a delightful surprise party was given last evening to the Rev. M. E. Kilpatrick, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church. After the usual Wednesday evening prayer meeting the congregation adjourned to the pastoral home and there, with proper ceremony, assisted in installing a fine new gas range, as a gift to the preacher. A feature of the social time which followed was the announcement of the engagement of the daughter of the people of the congregation, Miss Edith Laughhead and Dr. J. M. Wilson.

Another surprise was that given George Braden when he was one of the boys of the Y.M.C.A. called upon him and smuggled in at the same time a handsome, a handsome traveling bag and a toilet set in silver. These were to accompany Mr. Braden on his trip to Lake Geneva, where he is to spend the summer.

She managed to smother the flames and sent for a doctor. The child's injuries are serious. The attending physician says there is a chance that he may recover.

The machine will have a blower which will force a cold blast upon the fruit as it emerges from the washer. The blower will dry the fruit and reduce its temperature so that it will be in fine condition for shipping. The local exchange is the first to use such a machine on a large scale. Exchange directors Dr. C. A. Brown, Charles Shrode, W. W. Coats and Foreman E. W. Wadsworth have been inspecting the packing-houses in Southern California with the view of comparing their equipments and the results obtained.

PICNICKERS RAVAGE SIERRA MADRE PLACE.

Fires Are Left Burning and Evidence of Tampering With the Water Supply Are Found—Signs and Warnings Utterly Ignored—Property May Be Fenced In.

SIERRA MADRE, June 28.—Sierra Madre's famous cañon picnic grounds are likely to be closed to the public. Local owners are reluctant to make the move, but it seems to be the only alternative against reckless, careless picnickers. The first part of the cañon belongs to the Carter estate. Here the Carter brothers have already put up a gate and charge admission, in the hopes of making the visitors realize that they are on private grounds.

Further up the cañon is the water company's property, which has been open to all. Signs and warnings are utterly ignored. The smoking of camp fires is prohibited, but the campers are not deterred. The water company has sheet iron covered manholes, was found broken into at some of these points. There were enough signs about to show that the picnickers had been bathing or paddling in the water.

Some of the water company officers favor fencing up the cañon and forbidding all trespassing. At the water meeting next week action is pretty sure to be taken.

SENDS CHALLENGE TO DUEL. Ocean Park Police Prevent Combat Between Husband and His Wife's Friend.

OCEAN PARK, June 28.—The police officers here believe they have succeeded in preventing what promised to be a fight between two men. The officers refuse to give out any names but the story, as related by them, surrounds the alleged infatuation of a resident of the beach with the supposed wife of a resident of Los Angeles. So far as is known, the affair seems to have been the accidental discovery of a woman.

The discovery was made at a local skating rink, when eyes were made by the couple, from one to the other. It is said, however, that their acquaintance was purely formal, and of a platonic character. The husband heard of the affair, assuming that his wife was having an affair with another man, but it is understood that negotiations had so far proceeded that second chances had been given.

SCHOOL CLOCK HER SUBJECT

At the suggestion of Deputy Sheriff Reinger, the pupils in the state of the grade of the public school written essays this week on "The School Clock Has Seen This Year" and the result has brought out a number of interesting and original ideas from the children. The following sample of what imagination can develop on such a subject from one of the pupils may be said to have shined with added luster in literary field. The construction appealing are preserved.

The old school room clock has passed many pleasant occurrences in my class exercises and lively discussions. I am sure that it can be sure that old honorable clock could give in detail the origin of the world, the development of the institutions, and the history of the never flowing stream of civilization. It was given voice it could recite the legends of the olden times, the episodes of the superstitious tales of Sleepy Hollow and the romance of Ellen in The Lady of the Lake. The old clock has seen many hours away it has been browed over perplexing problems, then it has seen the end of many a pen and thoughtfully chewed, as one engaged into vacancy hoping for inspiration. The old clock has seen the clouded brain and the laboring pencil is made to race over the page. The old clock has seen the mutilation of pen or pencil and relieved, satisfied look which betokened the end of the task. Then once the old clock has seen where the culprit might have been yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden sets with sixty diamond.

No reward is offered, for they are forever.

The idling of precious moments so abused the clock, that it could face with its hands and succumb to the influence when light dawned and it too looses time. Anxious and placid faces have been taken up to it. Impatiently the lesson finishes and comes close at hand. Anxious, when few moments remain to finish the example and when the light goes go-lucky individual awaits the end of each thing in its turn and is content with the present.

When the school bell rings, the tell of character building. It is the honest, conscientious ones who found to do their best, thus laying the foundation for their future. It has also seen the child who does the wrong things and neglects his learning, weakens it by neglecting his foundation. Soon the clock will see the ending of the school year and the children's happy vacation days. But shadow with the sunshine for the golden years to be said to the pupils when the school year is left alone in solitude until the hum of the school room begins again.

G.A.R. SMOKER.

Bartlett Logan Post, No. 10, Army of the Republic, will have a smoker and "Camp Fire" in the school room on Friday night. A welcome is promised to all smokers.

Los Angeles the Best.

P. H. Bodkin, editor of the California Independent, returned yesterday from a month's trip through the Middle West with the National Editorial Association. He said: "I saw no city that can put up such attractions as Los Angeles. None have such newspapers, street-car service, street lighting systems, nor hustling citizens. Chicago beats us only in crowded streets."

Pawed Another's Watch.

D. A. Casey, a ranch hand living near Whittier, was arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with perjury. It is alleged that Casey found a watch which he knew to be the property of Miss Mary Hazard of Whittier. Instead of returning the timepiece, he is alleged to have pawned it in Los Angeles. The watch was discovered in the pawn shop by its owner and the arrest of Casey followed.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

This is Mace Greenleaf, who is to be the successor of William Desmond at the Burbank Theater.

Mr. Greenleaf is a very young man—Mr. Desmond—and has been on the stage comparatively few years. During the past season he has won a large measure of success in the East, and in romantic roles has been counted very much of a matinee idol. He hails from New York.

The new leading man is six feet in height, of athletic figure, and is said to be an unusually stylish dresser.

He will make his debut on July 15, playing the name part in the new Morosco-Cottrell play, "The Half-Breed."

This is a drama in reality having two leads, and the opposite part will be taken by Mr. Desmond, as his last appearance before going "on Broadway."

The Municipal Band of Long Beach is to give an unusually fine program in the pier auditorium this evening.

The orchestra will be assisted by a number of well-known Los Angeles artists.

Marco Vessella has prepared a brilliant concert program for his band, every number of the brief group being of merit and comparative novelty.

His selections are an Italian peasant chorus, by Constantini; the "Guarany" overture, by Gomes; the "Tosca" overture, by Puccini; and the "Walkure," with incidental solos.

The closing concert of the Treble Clef Club's season will be given tonight in Dobinson Auditorium, under the direction of William H. Tott.

Several excellent groups of numbers will be given by the women singers. A male quartette will give one or two incidental solos.

Harry Barnhart's farewell concert is scheduled to take place in Simpson Auditorium this evening, and the well-known basso will have the assistance of his friend and directorial successor, Henry Schoenfeld.

Mr. Barnhart's songs will be German and English, the first part of his recital being given entirely to compositions by Wagner, Schubert, Brahms and Schoenfeld.

The commencement exercises of the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Arts will occur tonight in Blanchard Hall.

The graduates are Irene Louise Carter and Clara Mort Shop, who represent nearly 200 pupils. Miss Carter graduates in two subjects.

BUGGY PAINTING

The fact that we manufacture vehicles of every description behooves us to employ only skilled labor. There is no experimenting being carried on in our paint shop, men (not boys) are employed to take care of this particular branch of our industry. We have finishers, drivers, varnishers and painters, each individually skilled in his profession, moreover, our facilities for giving you better work are strikingly apparent, inasmuch as we have more shop space, employ more labor, and have special rooms for the running gear, wheels, and body. We use the highest grade of paint and varnish, to first-class work, and give you the right price. Estimates cheerfully given.

SNARLS IN DESPAIR WHEN HELD FOR TRIAL.

Stackpole Must Answer for the Murder of Scheck—With Fear in His Soul He Talks for the First Time Since the Tragedy.

WITH the canker of a deadly fear breeding despair in his soul, Ernest Stackpole, for the first time since his arrest for the murder of Joel Scheck, has talked of his case.

Fresh from his preliminary examination, at which he came face to face with his paramour, for whose sake he is alleged to have killed her husband, he growled and snarled.

The accused murderer caused a sensation in the Police Court when he called as a witness the woman whose confession may send him to the gallows, but his questions filtered in her presence as she shrank from the man for love of whom she bathed her hands in her husband's blood.

Held for trial without bail, Stackpole told a representative of The Times that he is getting the "worst of it," and that he cannot make a defense for himself. He appeared to be on the verge of utter collapse.

In his utter despair, the accused murderer, Ernest Stackpole, found his tongue yesterday.

After his preliminary examination he broke his obstinate silence long enough to give a short interview to a Times reporter. Heretofore he has refused absolutely to talk even to the officers.

He was in the jailer's room at the Police Station, waiting to be sent to the County Jail to be held for trial. His cocky air of self-assurance was gone. The "front" of cold bluff that he held before him in court was gone.

He looked, what he is, a friendless, hopeless crook, with fear and despair eating at his very soul.

His hat was jammed down over his forehead. His hard, fishy eyes were pleading like a sick dog's. They looked weak and tired. They were watery with the tears that go before an utter collapse.

THINKS HE WAS ABUSED.
"Well," he said with a sigh that seemed to come from the depths of his soul, "I have been getting the worst of it right along. I suppose I shall have to stand that. I can't say anything in my own behalf. I can't make any defense of myself. I must get a lawyer."

"The papers give me the worst of it, but I can't help that."

He had just been brought face to face with the woman he is said to have killed Scheck to win. She had turned from him in court with frightened horror, though he was a snake. Her attitude had shaken him with fear and apprehension. He realized he had nothing to hope for from her.

"Why did you demand to have her brought into court, didn't you know she is going to confess that you and she plotted to kill Scheck?" he was asked.

SNATCHING AT STRAWS.
The man turned his weary, friendless eyes upon his questioner.

"I don't know," he said. "I was sitting there all alone in the midst of those officers and I heard somebody whisper to me to call for help."

"I supposed he was a lawyer. They say now he was a newspaper reporter. I don't know why he should say that to me. I supposed he was a lawyer. I didn't see what he would butt in for if he wasn't a lawyer."

He was asked again if he does not know she means to confess against him.

He dropped his head and sat so, his chin on his breast, the picture of utter dejection for a minute; then he said: "I don't want to say anything. I am going to get a lawyer in two or three days. And I don't want to do anything so that he—don't want to fix it so the tank—well, I can't say anything."

"What about this carpenter, Williams, who says he heard you and Mrs. Scheck talking in her husband's room on the street?"

NEVER ON THE STREET.
He shot out a little snarl. His first words, intelligible out of the mutter, were: "He never saw me on the street with Mrs. Scheck, like he claims. He never saw either of us in his life until he saw me in court. I never was with Mrs. Scheck on the street."

"Are you an ex-convict?" they say you have done time. "was the unpleasant remark made quickly to him. He was too indignant to resent it. You might as well have expected to find resentment in Kipling's 'Man Who Was'."

"I don't want to say anything," he said. But the man is so cowed that he began a jerky, faltering apology for not talking.

They say that something dies in a man when he has been in prison. Leaves him broken-spirited. There is in Stackpole's face the marks of a rested and distorted development that mark degeneracy.

The slaughter of a man in his sleep in order the better to carry on a love affair with his fat wife was the act of a cowed, broken-spirited degenerate.

CALLS FOR PARAMOUR.
WITNESS MAY HANG HIM.
Women, almost frenzied with curiosity, fought like demons to get into court where Ernest Stackpole was examined for murder yesterday and held for trial without bail.

They were wild to see the fascinating fat lady—Mrs. Scheck—whose charms are alleged to have driven Stackpole to murder her inconvenient husband—Joel Scheck.

They wanted to hear her confess how she and Stackpole plotted the murder to get the husband out of their way.

Another witness swore to hearing them concoct the plot; but she was not allowed to confess.

But for a frisky newspaper reporter who, in whispering, urged Stackpole to demand her appearance in court, the crowd would not have even seen Mrs. Scheck.

A QUIVERING WRECK.
When she was led in, on his demand, people saw a miserable quivering wreck on the verge of absolute collapse.

The officers feared she would break down if Stackpole looked her straight in the eyes. They gathered around to shield her when she went faltering to the witness chair.

Stackpole gaped at her; asked one or two aimless, trivial questions; got stage fright and allowed her to be led back to jail again.

The accused murderer seemed ob-led in with her attorney, Paul Usher, Esq.

FACE TO FACE.
There is nothing so thoroughly helpless looking as a fat woman in distress. She is not an unattractive woman, however.

She seemed to be at the highest pitch of emotion. One second she looked Stackpole full in the eyes with her own eyes dilated with a sort of terror. Then she shrank away. She sat with one hand clasping her fat wrist, as though her safety lay in clinging to that as to a life line.

"What do you want to ask her?" said Fleming, savagely, stepping up so he was between the woman and the defendant.

"When did I first know you?" he said directly to Mrs. Scheck.

"Christmas," breathed the woman, in a tiny, frightened whisper.

"Um—er—" stuttered Stackpole, at a loss what to say. "Under what circumstances did we first become acquainted?"

Mr. Fleming coldly objected to this question, on the ground that it had no bearing on the case.

The court leaned over the bench and rather kindly attempted to explain to Stackpole why his question was out of order.

Stackpole muttered, confusedly: "Well, perhaps I'm not competent to ask questions."

"Would you like to have the Court

ask them for you?" suggested Justice Rose.

"No, that's all," said Stackpole, hurriedly.

"Perhaps you would like to have this newspaper reporter ask them for you," said Fleming, with bitter sarcasm.

"That's all," repeated Stackpole.

Following is the summary of the most important testimony:

THE TESTIMONY.
A. Scholl, Harry Hays, Robert C. Harris heard the pistol shots in the early hours of June 1, and heard Mrs. Scheck cry out about five minutes thereafter: "My God, Joe has been shot by burglars."

John Herman and Nettie Scholl went to Stackpole's room to notify him of the murder. He said: "Joe can't be shot. No, no, that can't be true."

Herman said Stackpole got up and dressed and lit a cigar and brought out a bottle of wine before he started back with them to the house where Scheck lay dead. He made no inquiries as to the particulars of the shooting.

Dr. Campbell, autopsy physician, testified that the fatal bullets were fired at very close range, and entered the brain and heart.

Felix Hess, Stackpole told him that "if they catch those fends (meaning the murderers), I would like to be the one to help tie the knot."

O. L. Baker, city water department employee; Stackpole told him he was "so afraid Mrs. Scheck would be accused, as it would take her so much longer to get over it." Went with Stackpole to his room to get a handkerchief, and saw Stackpole suddenly snatch up a soiled handkerchief and stuff it in his pocket. Soon afterward he saw defendant in earnest conversation with Mrs. Scheck.

SPOTS WERE BLOOD.
Dr. R. J. Day analyzed the spots found on this handkerchief and found them to be blood.

Detective Richards found a locket containing Mrs. Scheck's picture in Stackpole's room. Also found where Stackpole had registered as James Bowen and wife at the Hotel Blaine, presumably with Mrs. Scheck.

Detective Dixon found pockets of dead man turned inside out, as though to support a burglar story, but found a watch and jewel box undisturbed in Scheck's house.

C. W. Dowling, a barber at No. 22 West Fifth street, swore in behalf of Stackpole that he cut his face in shaving him the day before the murder; it was a cut that might have easily started bleeding later.

SIT DOWN ON SCRUB HOLD-UP.

Eyes of Candidates Open to Scheme to Work 'Em.

Combine of Country Papers
Arrogant as Ever.

"Out for the Stuff" Is the Motto That Guides.

Exposure of their concerted "stand and deliver" tactics has caused country "journalists" of Los Angeles county to redouble their efforts to gouge every obtainable cent from candidates for office.

With brazen effrontery, they continue to stand up the political place-hunter, and, at the point of a pen, to compel him to give up the price demanded or to suffer eternal damnation in the columns of the weekly newspapers of the smaller towns.

While the brigands of the press were working under cover, it was an easy matter to frighten victims into paying for advertising space in return for boosts in the editorial and news pages.

Fear that some delegates to the county convention might be influenced by unkind things said about him in the "home" paper of rural constituents caused numerous candidates to pay the hush money demanded. They did not know then that over a score of the self-styled moulders of public opinion had banded together to squeeze the lemon dry of juice to pay for vacation trips for the members of the trust.

GOT THEIR EYES OPEN.
Comparison of notes after the searchlight was turned on has caused the candidates to open their eyes and to shut their purses. Those who have not already been caught in the meshes of the trust net now scorn the implied threats in the appeals of the country street-vendor form of these announcements of their candidacies. It has developed that at least one man desirous of a nomination was trucked a well over the head by one of the press highwaymen.

As common with others, this candidate received a letter suggesting that it would be well for him to pay for an announcement, to appear each week, until the date of the convention. The street-vendor form of these announcements is about as follows:

"Horace Highdiddle is a candidate for the office of county dog catcher, subject to the wishes of the Republican county convention."

Cards such as these are run in a bunch in the columns of the country press, and are supposed to keep the candidate's name before prospective delegates to the convention.

ROAST FOLLOWS BOOST.
Accepting it as a matter of course that every one approached would "give down," the editor of one country weekly proceeded to insert the card before he got the money to pay for it. Also to print a laudatory editorial on the strength of $5 or $10 that was thought to be forthcoming.

But the candidate was not so easy. He failed to see why he should be for something he did not want. His candidacy was well known. It was up to the people to approve or oppose it.

The "boost" was on the editorial page of the sheet, printed, as in many country offices, several days in advance of the local news pages.

Time came to go to press. No hush money from the candidate. Editor greatly mused up. Holds the press until the last mail train arrives. Nothing doing. Sits down and dashes off hurried "news" note to the effect that some candidates are beneath contempt; hide their lights under bushels; let the machine run their campaigns and keep the people in darkness; only those who advertise their candidacies in the Bungtown Bazaar are worth while, etc.

He fails to state that his opinion is bought with a $5 or a $10 gold piece, while the implication is clear that the candidate mentioned in his editorial and the one referred to in his "news" columns are one and the same.

There are exactly twenty-one country weeklies in the Los Angeles County Weekly Country Press association, the members of which are in the combine that is holding up the candidates. It includes papers at Arcadia, Hollywood, Monrovia, Norwalk, Alhambra, South Pasadena, Whittier, Gardena, Sawtelle, Azusa, Fernando, Compton, Huntington Park, Downey, Long Beach, Wilmington, Redondo, El Monte and Glendale, while a Los Angeles blacklisting publication, "Town Topics" also is included.

INVOLVES BIG SUM.
The terms of the combine for the cards suggested is $5 each in the event that the candidate inserts one in each paper, making a total of $105 for each candidate.

There are twenty-two major county offices, for which, in some instances, there are as many as seven candidates, besides numerous minor offices, such as township Constable and Justice of the Peace.

One hundred candidates at $5 each means $10,000 for the members of the association, or nearly $500 for each one—not a bad return for the effort.

But it means a great deal to the candidates, every one of whom must put up over $100 for this single purpose, with no particular benefit in sight.

Should he fail to subscribe $5 to each paper, he faces the alternative of paying $10 to each of those he decides might do him some good, so he is sure to be mulcted either way.

These twenty-one papers are only a part of the county's total. There are dailies in Pasadena, Long Beach, Whittier, Pomona, Santa Monica, and numerous other places, and all are in the combine, all of which will want a whack at the luckless seeker of a nomination.

Now that the game has been exposed, however, the bills for this particular kind of publicity promise to be curtailed very materially. The hold-up has been caught with the goods, and his game is about up.

WHEN WIGGINS
HITS THE WALK.

NEPTUNE TAKES A BACK SEAT AND OLD OCEAN SIGHS.

Things Are Doing in Atlantic City.
Where the California Exhibit of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce Holds the Center of Interest and the Earthquake Is Forgotten.

When Frank Wiggins hit the Boardwalk in Atlantic City over there on the Jersey coast, there were things doing with a vengeance, and, as Wiggins writes to a friend in this city, the eyes of the natives are still on the bulge.

No. 1309 Boardwalk is the Atlantic City home of the California special exhibit of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Under the Only Wiggins method of exploitation the exhibition is the whole thing on the wooden platform, and even the surging softy within sound of the Virginia voice.

In fact, Neptune has taken a back seat in the presence of the secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and the old ocean is playing second fiddle to the California exhibit at No. 1309. In spots on the Jersey coast it is stated that the Atlantic is making considerable of a hubbaloob and pounding the sand in erratic style for the purpose of attracting attention, but down on the Boardwalk there is a steady noise like the shuffling of a myriad of feet headed toward that little bit of this great earth which has been installed there by Frank Wiggins and his assistants.

Here is just an echo from across the continent, a note that was written by the busy Wiggins to a friend in this city, as he paused late one evening in dilly-dallying with the man of providence and the good things of the Golden State:

"We are in on the Boardwalk. Although not fully installed, we are entertaining 2000 to 4000 people daily, have the finest little California show ever installed, and it takes 'em all by storm. They stand with bulging eyes and open mouth, and with that, 'I'm beg-dog-gone, it, how do you do it?' expression. 'The old California takes the lead and do things in such a way that none of us can help wanting to go there.'"

"We have very little of the earthquake, which surprises us, as we fully expected to have it thrown at us on every turn. There is more interest in California than ever, and more want to visit it—especially our end. We are all suffering with the Boardwalk foot, a little so much standing and standing on wood; my old legs are so tight I can hardly sleep. (What little time I get for sleep.) What's doing? There's a whole lot going on here. Mr. Wiggins, and Los Angeles expects there will be still more of it before you give anything else a show on the Boardwalk here in Atlantic City."

U.S.C. SUMMER SCHOOL.
Courses Arranged Which Will Be of Particular Interest to Teachers in City Schools.

Prof. Howard Swan of the University of Southern California has arranged a course of summer classes at the university that especially appeal to the teachers of the public schools of Los Angeles.

The schools of the city close this week, and the classes in modern languages and a general literature course will open next week. This so affords the teachers an opportunity to register for the classes.

The classes in modern languages will be under Prof. Swan. He will have a beginners' class at 9 o'clock each morning, and an advanced class of literature at 10 and 11 o'clock. German will be taught by Prof. Bochnick, of the Polytechnic School of Pasadena, at 10 o'clock each morning. It is also the intention to start a class in Spanish, but definite arrangements are pending until a sufficient number of students signify their desire to attend these classes.

Under the tutelage of Prof. Gallaguer, a Spanish gentleman, who will hold sessions at 8 and 9 o'clock each morning.

"Wine, women and song," they say. But it is a shame to drag the "song" in.

Like a lot of other fellows, Tupper seems to have had a good time while he lasted.

On the other hand, it might be argued that Tupper merely carried the mutual life idea to extremes.

New York, like all the cities of the world, is not only afflicted but unappealingly cursed with lecherous dogs.

Los Angeles is never far behind hand when anything big is in the air. See how we now have a life insurance sensation?

Anthony Comstock says he will drive every moral pervert out of New York. Talk about Canute trying to sweep back the sea!

The game that the stripe of brute plays young spare time is spent in luring young girls from virtue, is not a man's game.

We'll say this for Anthony Comstock: If he could do what he'd like to do, this world would be a blamed sight better than it is now.

"Our contention has never been for any God-ordained money metal," say the Populists. The whistler fellows are as full of wind as ever.

If it is any satisfaction to Mr. Tupper, we can assure him that those who did not know him in Los Angeles, before, have since heard of him.

A Wisconsin Democratic orator refers to "the sunset of Bryan's political career." It has already had two sunsets, and is fixing for another.

Whatever the trouble is between Hearst and Joe Bailey, the returns seem to indicate that Joe has thrown it into Willie with a four-pronged pitchfork.

He had glory and to spare without taking a hand in the Owens River achievement, but wasn't it fine of the President to have done what he did, just the same?

For a man who was trained in his youth to bust broncos, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt is doing pretty well as a water man. He's surely great on the subject of ship canals and conduit projects.

Theodore Roosevelt appears to have taken a different view of the Owens River situation than that entertained by Sammy Clover and Uncle Heine Lowenthal, but—well, God save us, this is a queer world in some respects.

The Populists, assembled in convention at St. Louis, assert that they look back upon the past with satisfaction. Therefore, it is seen that in politics the thankful heart and the contented mind do not depend wholly upon victories gained or on pie from the counter.

Thanks, Theodore Roosevelt—thanks from us, your loving friends who loved you, anyhow, but now the more because of your great kindness to the Queen City of the World that lifts her towers of progress and spreads her shining highways of glory beside the Sunday Sea.

The Democracy of Pennsylvania has nominated a Republican and a Prohibitionist in order to fill out a State ticket. We knew that Democrats were almost as scarce as hen's teeth in the Keystone State, but we didn't know there weren't enough of them to make up a ticket.

Now there is nothing to prevent the Owens River from flowing into Los Angeles but a few billocks and the like of that. And we'll soon get them full of holes. Then get your throats ready for the cheers of welcome that are to rend the circumambient atmosphere when the crystal flood hits us with its hilarious moisture.

In prophesying the future of anarchy, a famous French advocate of that perilous theory said: "As long as one man dies of indigestion by the side of another who dies of hunger, the struggle will still go on." Then why is anarchy so really rampant now in the United States of America, where the full dinner pail is crying aloud for men to carry it?

Dave Ball of Missouri, according to the New York Sun, has put the Bryan situation in a nutshell. "When I see Grover Cleveland in the rear end of a train in Missouri talking for Bryan, I'll take back every word I ever said against him," says Dave. But that very thing may come to pass. Mr. Cleveland surely will desire to see Bryan again defeated, and he can in no better way help to do it than by taking the stump for him.

In the midst of the faithful, and in full sight of all the brewers, Danny Brady rose up and sent his silvery-sounding voice ringing into the hearts of his fellow-Democrats at Milwaukee. And "our craft will yet ride triumphantly to the sea," said Danny. But, no, no, never. The Democracy will never ride to the sea, where there is no wind. Democracy and wind are as necessary to each other as water is to a duck.

THE KNOCKERS AND ROOSEVELT.

Do our friends, those eminently respectable citizens of Los Angeles at the head of power corporations, still protest that they are not and never were "knockers" of the Owens River project? When their managers and engineers were shown up by The Times as enemies to the city's enterprise, some of the corporation heads disclaimed responsibility, for the malicious misrepresentations furtively circulated by their employees, and declared that the corporations were all in favor of the Owens River water system.

Their subsidized newspaper carried on the same campaign and did its feeble worst to mislead the people, loudly protesting all the time that it was actuated by the purest and most patriotic motives, and still they pretended that they were friendly to the project.

When Senator Flint began working for a right-of-way for the conduit, he found agents of the power companies actively opposing the measure in Washington, and he so informed the friends of the project in this city.

The President of the United States says publicly that the chief opposition to the right-of-way bill came "from certain private power companies, whose object evidently is, for their own pecuniary interest, to prevent the municipality from furnishing its own water."

President Washburn, of the Chamber of Commerce, and President Koepfl, of the Municipal League, report to the citizens of Los Angeles that "several power companies, by their attorneys and correspondents, opposed the bill in the departments and the committee."

The "knockers" are all smoked out, and the inspiration of the whole plot to prevent Los Angeles from obtaining a sufficient supply of water from Owens River is seen to be blind and deluded selfishness of the power corporations. They and their agents and subsidized tools have been forced into the open, and they can't get under cover again. Their purpose in trying to limit the city's use of water was twofold. First, they meant to reduce the amount of power developed by the conduit, or to cut out power development entirely. The insane proposition, put forward by their silly little organ, that the city advertise for "leaked bids" to furnish 10,000 inches of water from some source other than Owens River, disclosed that scheme.

Second—if the city could be prevented from making use of all the water it has secured in Owens Valley, it would lose its right to the unused water, and the power companies and George Chaffey could "jump" the claims and hold the future of Los Angeles at their mercy.

President Roosevelt laid bare the purpose of the power companies and their associate knockers when he said: "Their opposition seems to me to afford one of the strongest arguments for passing the law, inasmuch as it ought not to be within the power of private individuals to control such necessary of life as against the municipality itself."

The President deals gently with the few settlers of Owens Valley who have opposed the project, and points out to them that it is necessary to disregard their interests because "it is a hundred or a thousandfold more important to the State, more valuable to the people as a whole," that the surplus waters of Owens River be used by the city than that it be used in Owens Valley.

In thus interpreting his influence and authority between the people and greedy corporate interests for the protection of the public, President Roosevelt has again demonstrated his unique fitness for leadership in the great movement to break the stranglehold of the predatory trusts both capitalist and union labor, on these United States, and has justified the people's faith in his sincere earnestness. There seems to be no other so well qualified to conduct an aggressive campaign against those abuses of privilege which threaten the very life of the nation, and it is the ardent hope of the American people that Theodore Roosevelt will be their leader and champion until the work of redemption from trust tyranny and greed is finished.

PROGRESS IN PANAMA.

The republic of Panama is young and it is little, but its voters seem to have some pronounced ideas on political subjects. In an interesting (and even edifying) dispatch from the city of Panama, under date of June 24, we read that the elections held on that day were orderly, with some slight exceptions. The exceptions consisted of "a few free fights," which didn't really amount to anything, and were evidently regarded as rather enjoyable, if not necessary, adjuncts of the occasion.

On the whole, the elections "passed off quietly," as we in the United States say, until late in the afternoon, when some of the Liberals, so far as can be judged by the meagre telegraphic account, got busy. Policemen who were protecting the ballot boxes at Santa Ana Park became mixed up more or less promiscuously with the over-zealous exponents of isthmian liberalism. The participants on both sides must have "mixed it" in a rather lively manner, for when the time came to take an inventory of results it was found that "nine policemen and José Antonio Paredes, a member of one of the best families of Panama, were badly wounded, and one Liberal was killed." It required forty armed policemen to restore order, but at last accounts, there was still danger of serious fighting. By this time, presumably, all is quiet along the Chagres River and the route of the canal. At least it is reported that the constitutional party was victorious in Panama City and the provinces of Coclé, Veragua and Chiriquí.

The incidents of the election in Panama are comparatively unimportant in themselves, but they serve in some degree to show that the Panamanians are making distinct progress toward a higher civilization. In the days, before the gringo came, the election would not have passed off so quietly, with the killing of only one man and the breaking of a few heads. It would have meant civil war, with probable revolution. As we understand the matter, this is the usual way of holding an election in the free republics of Central and South America. The practice has some advantages, of course, but there is room for improvement, as must be admitted. But the Panamanians are on the right track, beyond question. By and by, perhaps, they may be able to hold elections without killing anybody or even inflicting dangerous wounds.

THE ISHMAELITE'S FATE.

It was entirely the expected which happened in the Senate on Wednesday, when picturesque Senator Joe Bailey, in all his glad clothes and with his usual fiery southern oratory, took the floor to pay his addresses to the notorious if not distinguished Democratic member of the House of Representatives, William R. Hearst.

For purposes of classification, Hearst is put down in Congress and elsewhere as a Democrat. Had indeed it is to see brethren of the same political family "fall out and chide and fight." But in politics, in business, in social circles, and everywhere else, that Yellow Willie makes his appearance, it is always as an Ishmaelite. He is against every one and everything excepting Hearst and the things of Hearst.

According to the Hearst publications, daily, weekly, monthly, and otherwise, there is only one honest man on the face of the earth, and it is needless to mention who that one honest man is.

All the members of Congress, except the one who occupies a seat from the city of New York, are boodlers of the blackest dye. That one stands for all things high and righteous, patriotic, and for the public good, measured by his own standards.

This Hearst person is by all odds the most spectacular thing in the world of politics or of business at the present day. He is the most curious character study probably the world has ever seen. With an indomitable ambition in politics, a seemingly impossible and ridiculous ambition, he really seems possessed of the notion that he is in some way a Presidential possibility. His way of reaching the goal of his ambition is as curious as the ambition itself. As he is in business, so he is in politics, an incarnate Ishmaelite. His own political colleagues are just as likely to feel the scorching breath of his displeasure as his staunchest political opponents. The idea of Hearst as a Presidential candidate is grotesque enough to furnish gaiety for all the nations. The idea of reaching the goal of his ambition by the means of every member of his own political party, one after another in turn, makes the game ten times funnier than it would otherwise be.

There is only one element of society at which Hearst never hurls a thunderbolt and which he never burns up with the breath of his displeasure. These lower strata of society, of the body politic, and of the industrial community, from labor unions down to bloodthirsty anarchists, all Ishmaelites themselves, are naturally the only friends, allies, and compatriots that this prince of Ishmaelites has in the world. It is the only sane streak in Yellow Willie's spectacular career.

He seems to know that all his hopes, in politics as in business, center in this class of the population, so much like himself in their tyrannous disregard for other rights, in their arrogant assumption that they are the only people who have a right to live, and to earn a living.

Well, it is many and many a generation since the original Ishmaelite set out upon his bloodthirsty career on the desert, with his little band of bloodthirsty Arabs around him, to fight his way by fire and sword through the world. Very naturally the world banded against the Ishmaelite and his tribe. In all the long generations that have passed he has made but little progress in his warfare. The world has gone on, nations have risen, flourished, decayed, and perished, and other nations have risen up and taken their place in the world. America has been discovered, the New World has been subdued and populated. Great cities stud the globe at a thousand points, and still the arid sands of Arabia and the little band of Ishmaelites are about where they were 2000 years ago.

It is about as long a journey as the original Ishmaelite that Hearst and his tribe have before them, to accomplish their purpose of attaining everything for themselves, of getting the great big world by the nape of the neck and controlling it for their uses and purposes. Ishmael and his tribe came just about as near conquering the human race against which their hands were raised, as Hearst will ever come to capturing the Presidency of the United States.

THE KNOCKERS KNOCKED.

WILL SAN FRANCISCO HEAR?

The devastated city of San Francisco stands on the threshold of the most stupendous crisis a city has ever had to face. It is not long to look back to the time when San Francisco was practically the metropolis of the Pacific, and held in her hands the commercial interests of the whole Coast. It is so no longer. San Francisco is not, and will not be in the future, the mistress of the commerce of the Pacific Coast. She has rivals capable of disputing with her the mastery over this great increasing commerce of the Pacific, and they will contend with her for the possession of this trade.

The trans-Pacific trade is becoming so important that the Chinese government has sent here an imperial high commission to investigate commercial conditions as they exist and as they are likely to develop between that empire and the United States. Of course this study centers for the most part about the Pacific Coast, for most of the trade will be done from the ports of the western shores of the United States. This commission will return to China and will undoubtedly report that San Francisco is far from being the only seaport at which business can be conveniently done between the Chinese empire and our country. They find Seattle upon Puget Sound a busy and enterprising city, with a large and growing population, and with every facility in the way of seaport and wharves for doing business expeditiously. There are several railroads centering there, covering all parts of the interior of America. Farther north is a foreign dominion with its own railroads, and these penetrating the United States at many points along our borders, intent as can be of securing all the Chinese trade they can possibly obtain. Portland on the Willamette, 125 miles from the mouth of the Columbia River, is another city with shrewd business men possessed of wealth and with ample facility for doing a large trade with the Orient. Here other railroad lines center, penetrating other parts of the United States, and affording facilities for the wide distribution of goods coming from the Orient, and with quite as important facilities for assembling on the wharves of Portland the exports which the United States is sending to the Orient. Five hundred miles south, San Francisco sees the new port of San Pedro and the merchants and wealth of Los Angeles.

San Francisco has advantages such as none of these rivals possesses, and such as all of them combined cannot match. Her position midway from north to south is one. Her magnificent bay and immense stretch of wharves is another. The established trade San Francisco already has with the Orient gives her another leverage with which to hold it. The city is more wealthy than all her rivals put together, and if these advantages are used wisely the metropolis of the Pacific Coast has nothing to fear from any rivalry. She can hold her own against all of us put together.

To do this San Francisco must be a free American city. Her government must be clean, affording to every man equal rights with all others to do business on a fair basis. If the business men of San Francisco, with all their great wealth, with all the trade that they have already built up with the Orient, with the reputation of their bay, and every other advantage that they have in their favor, will lie down, nerveless and spineless, and let incompetent and dishonest men manage the affairs of their city, and permit the arrogant and impudent clique of tyrannical labor unions to bind the city hand and foot and keep her in the slavery from which she has suffered in the last twenty years, then all these advantages will go for nothing. San Francisco will see her commerce and business slipping away from her, and being seized by her rivals north and south, leaving her lamed and maimed, instead of healed and made whole and placed where she belongs, at the commercial headship of the whole Pacific Coast. Her destiny is in the hands of her own business men, and for them it is to say what shall be the fate of the city, whether or not she is to rise, though American, thoroughly modern, entirely free, wisely governed, her business honestly conducted, and every man given a fair opportunity to earn a living and to do business. If this programme is carried out, San Francisco will very quickly regain her leading position in the affairs of the Pacific Coast. If not, she will lag behind in the race, and must be content to see her rivals run away with the great prizes that are now within her own grasp.

The Times believes and has said that William Mulholland is one of the most competent water engineers in the country, and is better qualified than any other engineer to plan and construct a water system for Los Angeles, but that, nevertheless, his plans will be submitted to a board of consulting engineers and passed upon by that board, at his request, and in accordance with the declared policy of the Water Commissioners. The subsidized organ of the Owens River knockers quotes a part of what The Times says, omits what is said about the board of experts, seeks to convey the impression that The Times opposes the appointment of such a board, and pretends that the submission of plans to experts is its own suggestion. A more thoroughly and contemptibly dishonest little faker never broke into journalism in Los Angeles.

WHAT DO I KNOW?

What do I know? Poor little me, I need a microscope to see. What I do know? The overflow of nature's riches all aglow. And sparkling with the stars and dew. I only know beyond the blue I cannot see.

What do I know? I know but this: I know my ignorance is bliss. Most wisely planned.

That towering pines and mountains grand. Are dear and beautiful to me: Beyond their peaks I cannot see, But God is there. And everywhere. And this is good enough for me. —Capt. Jack Crawford in the Lyceum.

Japan Gives Instruction.

If Commodore Perry had been told that within the lives of members of his expedition the civilized world would be seeking expert scientific knowledge from the Japanese, he would have been a surprised man, indeed. Yet such are the changes which the whirligig of time has so suddenly brought to pass. We look to Prof. Mori of Tokio as the most experienced expert on the subject of earthquakes, and it is noted with pleasure that he has given San Francisco a clean bill of health for some time to come. He thinks there will be no more danger in that locality for ages. As there are more earthquakes in Japan than anywhere else in the world, it is to be hoped that the learned doctor is a true prophet. He explains that these secondary quakes are to be expected, but are never dangerous. —(Philadelphia Inquirer.)

THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER.

A King. This day a king was crowned somewhere. They clad him in a purple gown. That blazed with jewels here and there. They shouted as he took the crown. And vowed a nation's tasks to bear. The cheers rang through the royal town. When he stepped proudly to his throne. And down his cheeks we often trace. But on each street there walks, alone, Unheeded, another king.

Aye, on each street, and on each road. And through the furrows of each field. He walks, for him no great abode. High-walled, and rich, and nobly cooled; For him no purple raiment, sewed With brocaded coat-of-arms and shield! No courtiers throng 'round him, forsooth. No warriors breathe of battle spoil. And yet he is a king in truth— This bronzed and brawny king of toil.

Throned on the slim, sky-fretting beams. That trace the shape of what will be. He brings to form another's dreams. This emperor of industry. Deep in the mine his cap-light gleams: His full chant swells above the sea. The realm of daily toil is his. He rules no hemmed and bordered land. A wondrous realm his kingdom to be. The task that lieth to his hand.

Perchance he may be smugged of face. His hat be ragged as to brim. And down his cheeks we often trace. In streaks, the honest sweat of him. But hail to him! He fills his place. This man of tireless eye and limb. His garb is royal, none the less. Though bare of brocaded stripe and collar.

No man has more of kindliness. Than he who wears the garb of toil. Old Man Giddies Thinks: The man who criticizes what you do rarely does anything that anybody else wants to criticize.

Conscience is so asthmatic it hardly ever makes itself heard until the time for blaming yourself. We learn by our mistakes. After one or two we learn to conceal them if possible.

When I hear a man arguing that the world is growing better every minute, I know he has just beaten some other man's slot machine. Puddiford Suggs estimates that the last time he sold a gold be was valued to take, in all, $240 worth of medicine.

Are the Gypsies Going?

"In the Romany a vanishing race" asks a correspondent. "The hedge crawler is a very familiar figure along our highways, but the full-blooded Romany, the tawny-skinned, the brown, the black-haired, the fierce, the man of leisure, the peasant, himself, seem to be to be rapidly disappearing. The village constable and the gamekeeper may add 'and a good job, too.' But tender memories of Silver Sand and Quaharrie prompt me to ask you is this really the case, and if future generations will believe that such melodies as 'A fire' 'neath the tent, and a tent beneath the trees' were written in honor of numbers? Surely, O great Lavinia, and daily historian of strange ways and customs, you will not let this matter pass you without a line of inquiry."

Is there any one who can tell whether the Lees and the Smiths and the Boswells are dying out in our midst? Are the people Bosworth wrote about so delightfully "decaying race?" (London Chronicle.)

Teacher Greater Than the Noblest Heroes."

The largest single class ever graduated from the State Normal School received diplomas yesterday morning. There were ninety-seven young men and two young men in the class. The jolly girls comprised the latter "end men" of the performance. Behind the bank of fragrant flowers, greater than the noblest heroes of military science and conquest. His fame is acquired not by the blood of others nor by injustice, but by his own ability to lead others to higher and nobler thought.

"All nations, all peoples, at all times, have loved and respected the teacher. There is no stain on his garment, there is no blood on his crown. He has been the philosopher and the benefactor of the people."

"Personality weighs far more than method. Consecration to work, consecration to one's own idea of how best to impart the knowledge he possesses, is a key to successful teaching. The teacher who has sympathy for his class realizes that the pupils are not to be treated as an impersonal group, but as a group of individuals, each with characteristics which demand recognition. The child is not to be made a reading or ciphering machine, but a mind taught to think and reason, and a life made to feel that nobility of character and perfection in virtue make the true man."

"Every teacher should have faith that even in the least promising and least interesting scholar there is a power for good which should be exercised, and which it is the business of the teacher to develop."

"It is personality that educates. It is the very soul of the teacher, it is an influence, an impress, a fire that contributed by friends of the graduates, and so profuse that they could not all be piled on the front of the stage, was a yet more beautiful bank of love, in the graduates themselves. An elevated platform was constructed so that the entire class sat in full view, with the two men prominently perched on the two outer corners.

The programme consisted of the singing of a song by the entire class; recitation by Rev. L. G. Morris; song by the Glee Club; address by Bishop Chaty and the presentation of the diplomas by President Mills.

The address of Bishop Chaty was one of the finished productions for which the eminent Catholic prelate is well known. In his opening, he paid high tribute to the vocation of those who have dedicated their lives to the important task of instructing the youth of the land. Following are some of his massive sentences bearing directly on the work of the teacher:

"To be the instrument in the upbuilding of character, in the ennobling and perfecting of the faculties of mankind is, indeed, an important and honorable vocation. To lead a youth in the full and proper development of the faculties of his nature is a noble and responsible calling."

"All mankind has recognized that there is no social calling more sacred than that of molding the human mind and lives to higher and better things. Character is more important than knowledge, which is only a means to the higher end, not itself an end. The religious sense is needed in the teacher and for the Christian child the religious sense of the teacher should be developed upon the correct principles of Christianity, he should be a man of faith, a man of virtuous life."

"The tendency today is largely away from the religious in education, and serious-minded men and women are fearing the results which are already manifesting themselves in the growing disregard for the things of morality. The morality which is looked for as a result of education cannot come from any training that divorces religion from education."

"Possessed of this sense of his office the teacher should realize that at no more honorable position in life awaits him than that which calls him to the duties of instruction, while at the same time he should be alive to the obligation that he himself should be what he would strive to have others become. Personal integrity, a character without stain, an upright and moral life should mark the teacher's own life."

"The responsibility of the teacher demands fitness not merely in the knowledge acquired but also and more particularly in an aptness for the imparting of knowledge. He should possess an intimate and intelligent acquaintance with his work; he should study the methods best adapted to the proper instruction of others in that knowledge; he should be familiar with methods and yet never become a slave to a method. The teacher trained in the methods of others frequently drifts into a mere machine; a simple automaton at the teacher's desk; a man who teaches with somebody else's unassimilated methods, and is not even poor apology for a teacher."

"The ability to teach supposes, first of all, knowledge of the subject matter, and, secondly, the desire to have the student know what you know, to live it as thoroughly as you know it, to live it as fully as you live it. It is the duty of the teacher, who stands before the world comes from the soul of the teacher and enters into ours and molds, fashions and transforms us into one with him.

"In all your work be yourself, you can never successfully be any one else; imitators are on the stage, not behind the teacher's desk."

There will be thousands of pairs of shoes for men, women and children on sale. There will be a special lot of tan shoes on sale at half price and less. Ladies' $2.00 and $2.50 oxford ties, numerous different styles, will be sold for 95c. Boys' serviceable up-to-date shoes for 95c. There is an endless variety of misses' shoes and strap slippers, worth from $1.50 to $2.00, all new goods that go for 95c a pair. There are forty tables that will be loaded with bargains in footwear. Visit the big shoe store; look over the different bargains and get the benefits of the price reductions. The Mammoth never disappoints its customers. Fifteen years of shoe selling in Los Angeles with honest methods has brought the Mammoth to the front ranks. This store sells more shoes than any shoe establishment in the west. Be on hand today or tomorrow, and don't forget the number. It is 519 South Broadway, between Fifth and Sixth streets.

Nine miles of 100 foot boulevards, with central parkways, at Athens On The Hill.

Twenty Minutes' Ride from Downtown Los Angeles

Athens is not some remote property—inaccessible—where values will increase slowly. It is only about six miles from Los Angeles—between this city and San Pedro. Two car lines pass through Athens now—the Interurban San Pedro line and the Redondo line, Gardena division. A third line is now building that guarantees regular running time of twenty minutes, or less, between Athens and Sixth and Main streets, Los Angeles. Frequent car service now. More frequent coming, in the near future. In short, Athens is nearer the office of the Los Angeles business man, than many sections of the city itself.

Money is being lavished on improvements at Athens. An abundant supply of pure artesian water has been developed. Nine miles of one hundred foot boulevards with central parkways are being graded. Cement curbs and sidewalks are now going in.

Advantage is being taken of the natural contours of this great hill, giving diversity to the shape and "lay" of lots, and ensuring a beautiful view from every one.

You can get no adequate conception of the beauty of Athens, of what is now being done there, nor of further improvements to be made—without going over the hill itself with somebody who is in touch with the plan and its development, present and prospective. You owe yourself this information. This is no ordinary property. The plan behind Athens is no ordinary plan. As it develops, values at Athens will increase. Get posted now. Those who get informed early in big movements of this character are the people who make money. Visit Athens, and go over the proposition carefully with our representatives.

No such outlook from any residence section in Southern California as from Athens. Located on the only hill between Los Angeles and San Pedro, there is a glorious view on every hand. Athens overlooks Los Angeles and on to the mountains on the north; includes a broad ocean view on the south. To the east a broad sweep of country for 125 miles stretches out like a panorama from Athens On The Hill.

Here is the place to establish your home—away from the city with its dust and smoke, yet near enough in point of transportation—in this carefully restricted residential suburb. Prices of lots are low, in spite of the costly improvements that are being carried out. And terms are easy enough to suit any responsible investor.

Visit Athens Free Fares.

Doesn't take long to see Athens, though you'll want to linger over the glorious view from this great hill. Go down today or tomorrow. Free tickets, maps and full information at any of the offices named below. Avail yourself of this pleasant, profitable outing. If you cannot do so before, arrange now to go Sunday.

CHEMIST TRIES TO KILL SELF.

CHOOSES THE BULLET ROUTE AT SAN BERNARDINO.

Former Employee of the Yellow Aster Mining Company Gives Up to Dependency and Attempts to Take His Life With a Revolver. Belle Captured With Shotgun.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SAN BERNARDINO, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles Brant, giving his address as Los Angeles, shot a bullet into his body this afternoon in his room at the St. Charles Hotel. The bullet went completely through him.

Some time later his groans attracted a young woman in charge, who, looking into the room, was horrified to see the man lying on the floor still clutching the revolver.

On the way to the County Hospital he pleaded with Dr. J. H. Meyer to get him out of his misery, beseeching the fact that he had made such a poor job of his attempt. He may survive a few days, but the physicians hold out little hope of recovery.

A year ago Brant was discharged from the Yellow Aster mining plant at Randsburg, where he was employed as chemist. He sought assistance in connections with a secure income with Dr. Burman, head of the mining company, who reported the matter to the Los Angeles police, evidently fearing harm from Brant.

The man came here four weeks ago. He wrote love letters and was found with poison in his possession, which he declared he would take. This he is surmised that he was desperate and unrequited love. Today it was learned that he has a wife in Los Angeles, to whom he had written recently.

This morning he claimed he had secured reinstatement at the Yellow Aster, and asked a loan from a lodge. A few hours later he fired the shot into his body. He attributes his act to drink. His claims to have wealthy relatives at Los Angeles, prominent in business circles there.

BELLE CAPTURED HOBO. Miss Margaret Vahey, a society belle, performed a daring capture of a hobo this afternoon, while he was robbing her father's orange grove. Hearing a noise in the orchard she investigated to find the hobo just crawling over a fence. She fired her gun, compelling the hobo to stop. He was then taken to the police station.

"I demanded his business there, and asked him if he did not know he was committing a crime," said the young girl in court. In the district he fired the shot into his body. He attributes his act to drink. His claims to have wealthy relatives at Los Angeles, prominent in business circles there.

That was too much for Miss Vahey, who secured a shotgun, and, covering the hobo, ordered him forthwith to her house. While she stood guard over him with the shotgun he was compelled to stand with his hands in the air while a neighbor woman telephoned for an officer. He pleaded guilty and was given a fine.

DEMANDS DAMAGES. Emma Talmadge this afternoon commenced action against the Santa Fe for $25,000 damages for the loss of her husband, Burr Talmadge, a swimmer, who was killed here last winter.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED. Mexicans Near Colton Give Up About $45 Worth of Articles Bought from Stranger.

COLTON, June 28.—A search among the Mexicans in the settlement south of the city yesterday by Detective Ziegler of Los Angeles and Constable Hagley resulted in the recovery of stolen goods worth about $45. The articles were given up by a group of Mexicans near Colton.

PARENTS BOTH GO INSANE. Death of Their Young Child Causes Them to Lose Their Reason.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.) SAN BERNARDINO, June 28.—One of the saddest spectacles ever witnessed in the Superior Court here took place this afternoon, when Lloyd Brown and his wife, Minnie, were both brought before Judge Bledsoe and two lunacy commissioners, to be examined as to their sanity.

The couple went to Upland a few weeks ago from Los Angeles to visit Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Buckholder. Brown's brother-in-law and sister, and three weeks ago their 3-year-old daughter died suddenly of pneumonia.

Grief over the child deranged both parents, and since last Monday they have been acting strangely, their condition growing worse with each succeeding day. Brown imagines he is the Evil Spirit, who has been tormenting his wife, and the wife imagines that her "bridegroom" is coming to rescue her from the Evil One, and for several days has been preparing her ascension robes.

When the couple were brought to the Courthouse this afternoon both were violent. Mrs. Brown flew at Assistant District Attorney H. M. Willis, his fingers distended to scratch him, but at a quiet word of command from him she clasped her hands and surrendered to his order to follow the officers into the courtroom.

Brown took advantage of an opportunity when the officers were not close by to leap from a second-story window of the Courthouse, and landed safely on his feet. He then sprinted across the lawn, and climbing to the top of a high iron fence, attempted to drive the spikes through his body. Both were committed to the asylum.

Riverside Man Tries to Stop in Rink That Way and Gets a Great Surprise—Foot Go Higher Than His Head While One of the Bones of His Forearm Snaps.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

RIVERSIDE, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because he reared up his heels to stop himself just as he used to forty years ago when skating, William Collier, one of the oldest lawyers in Southern California and the leader of the Riverside bar, lies at his home with a broken arm.

This city now has a skating rink in every quarter of the down-town district. Collier left his office about 4 o'clock and as he was passing a near-by rink one of his acquaintances sailing gaily around the room began to "jolly" him as too old to skate.

Collier said he had not done it since he was a boy before the Civil War. He got on the skates all right, starting with the old-time swing of a boy, and after gracefully moving for about twenty yards, tipped upon his heels to halt. His heels went higher than his head and one of the bones in his forearm snapped when he hit the floor.

William Collier is over 65 years of age, but ordinarily he is as frisky as a boy. He is now confined to his bed, and his arm is in a cast.

RIVER EIGHT MILES WIDE. Levee Breaks at Palo Verde; People Desert Homes and Flee to the Hills.

RIVERSIDE, June 28.—Thousands of acres of alfalfa and grain land in the eastern part of Riverside county have been flooded with water as a result of the breaking of the levee about the town of Palo Verde. The entire settlement is under water.

The people started their homes for the hills, driving their stock ahead of them. The river at Palo Verde is now eight miles wide.

BAY CITY RECALL. Judge Tracy Decides That San Diego Council Must Call Special Election.

SAN DIEGO, June 28.—From Superior Court Judge Tracy of Los Angeles has been received his decision in the proceedings in which Dr. Charles L. Good and other voters of the Seventh Ward seek the recall of Councilman Judge Tracy. Judge Tracy holds that the petitioners are entitled to the special election which they demand, and he directs the enforcement of the writ of mandamus against the Council, ordering that body to call such election.

SAN DIEGO PARAGRAPHS. While at work guiding dump cars across a trestle from where contractors are filling a causeway in the course of grading Adams avenue, E. L. McIntire was instantly killed yesterday by the trestle giving way and throwing him and his car down a distance of eighty feet.

At today's meeting of the Board of Public Works William Collier was elected superintendent of the city water department, succeeding C. S. Livermore, resigning. The city engineer, Moore of the street department reported that all save two of the contractors on city work were working on Sunday.

The ladies of the Baptist Church will serve luncheon to the public on July 4, at Spencer's store. Mrs. M. E. Jolly has gone to San Diego to visit friends.

Mrs. E. W. Everett has gone to Fallbrook for extended visit. Mrs. C. E. Savage of Redlands is now occupying the Grant cottage.

Woodridge of Riverside has rented the Griffith cottage on ocean front. A. W. Burman of San Bernardino is here for an outing.

Miss Luella Palmer of Redlands has just completed a tent house for the season. Mr. K. S. Sandler of Escondido is at the Grant cottage.

Mr. A. Norton and wife of Escondido have arrived for a stay at the beach. George Humphries and family are here from Sierra Madre for the summer.

POMONA CANNERY BUSY. POMONA, June 28.—These are the busy days at the Pomona cannery, where a large force is engaged in canning berries, cherries and apricots. The latter fruit is coming in large quantities now and of excellent quality. In July peaches will begin to arrive here from the San Joaquin Valley, where W. M. Seaman, proprietor of a hotel at Jerome, Ariz.

Mrs. E. L. Downing of this city has been elected chief of the Rathbone chapter of the State and has assumed the official duties of the office. Mrs. Downing will spend about five months visiting the various lodges of California.

On Monday evening the ladies of the local Shakespeare Club will present "As You Like It" on the lawn and grounds at the home of A. C. Abbott. The funeral of Mrs. M. A. Pixley of No. 75 West Grove avenue was held this afternoon at the home of the Church, the W.R.C. and local lodge of Rebekahs attending in a body.

Merritt Ludden is due to arrive here to see the southern metropolis, a teacher in the government schools for several years. He will visit his parents, G. A. Ludden and wife.

GRAND PARLOR ELECTS CHIEFS.

WALTER D. WAGNER IS CHOSEN FOR PRESIDENT OF ORDER.

Defeat of Warren Porter by Trustee Comes as a Surprise—The Rufus Wins Office by Safe Vote—Governor Makes Brief Address—Delegates Coming to Los Angeles.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) VENTURA, June 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Grand Parlor of the Native Sons finished its work this evening, after one of the busiest days of the session. This was election day, and in the fight for the seven trustees there was one surprise in particular, when Warren Porter went down to defeat. It is stated in inside circles that the defeat of Porter has no particular significance, and that his friends were so certain that he would win that they made no effort for him. It is said, also, that Porter took no particular interest in his own case. He was the only member of the old Grand Trustees who failed of election.

Abraham Reul got in by a safe vote. The trustees elected and the vote followed: Daniel A. Ryan, 263; Herman Lichtenberger, 260; Clarence L. Davis, 132; Fletcher Curtis, 177; Thomas Monahan, 176; Abraham Reul, 144; John T. Skelton, 143. The vote for the defeated candidates was: Warren Porter, 184; F. B. Webb, 199; Hamilton, 103; Conyns, 50, and Mark Bralley, 38.

CONTEST FOR OFFICE. The election of a regular officers brought out no fight, except in the case of Outside Sentinel, where there was a brush between C. C. Brown and R. W. Lawson, the latter being defeated by a vote of 143 to 96.

The officers of the Grand Parlor elected today to serve for the coming year are: Grand President, Walter D. Wagner; First Vice, M. T. Diola; Second Vice, C. M. Behrman; Third Vice, Congressman J. R. Knowlton; Secretary, C. E. Turner; Treasurer, E. McDougall; Marshal, George C. Egan; Outside Sentinel, George L. Palmer; Inside Sentinel, C. C. Brown.

The presence of Gov. Pardee in the city today lent interest to the proceedings. He arrived this morning with his wife, and went immediately to attend the parlor session, where he stayed during the day, expecting for a short time during the afternoon, when he delivered a brief address to the people of the town from the band stand.

NATIVE BONS NEEDED. The Governor said that how more than ever since the destruction of San Francisco would it be necessary to the future welfare and building up of the State and city, for which the pioneers had labored so faithfully. He felt certain, he said, that with the help of the sons of the old pioneers the city would again arise and be stronger than ever.

Many of the delegates will leave the city tomorrow. By the first train in the morning at least 150 of them, with their wives and friends, will depart for Los Angeles, it being their intention to see the southern metropolis, the beaches and points of interest before going to their homes.
